I guess you could say I've been around, and in all these years I've seen a great deal. Due to my prominent position and strategic perspective, it was suggested that I would be uniquely qualified to give this introductory overview.

Over the years I've witnessed passing fads from poodle skirts to minis, and have seen students evolve from Richie Cunninghams to Flower Children. Now we've arrived in the 80's, a mad conglomeration of all of the above. Individuality has become the new wave, and just about anything goes. This has led to an incredibly diverse student body. Walking down my halls, for example, one can hear discussions of every topic from soccer to SADD, sex to Socrates.

Despite this diversity, there are a few things that most students seem to have in common, such as feeling intensely pressured to succeed. For better or for worse, they have managed to maintain my history of high standards for over 50 years. My rank among the top five secondary schools in the nation by college recruiters this year can be partially attributed to excellent staff. Five teachers, including Gary Graper, Elizabeth Palmer, Grace Waggoner, Raymond Quant, and Karen Zuraski received awards from the Bassett Foundation this year. I'm also extremely proud to display the award for excellence given by the United States Department of Education.

Although students of the 80's have become extremely liberal and independent, they still have to comply with mandates of authority. I've always been flexible for students, and my doors have always been open, but it looks like they won't be for long. Due to a new legislation, students from 1987 on will have to adjust to having a closed campus.

Yes, I've changed with the times — at least on the surface: an addition a few years back, landscaping on Ash Street, and a few new coats of paint and varnish — but the real me is still here. In a day of intense international struggle and internal strife, I'm proud to think that the structure and stability I offer has remained a steadfast element in students' ever-changing lives. For it is these lives, with their hopes, fears, frustrations and achievements that make me what I am: West High School.

IN REVIEW

1985 saw the passing of another Soviet leader, Konstantin Chernenko. President Reagan and the new Soviet leader, Mikhail Gorbachev set up the first Soviet-American summit under Reagan's administration. Neither side was willing to concede to much, especially on the star wars issue.

Mexico suffered an earthquake which killed nearly 10,000 people. The area of damage was concentrated in Mexico City's downtown district that is built over a marsh.

Terrorism was at a high this year, taking 782 lives. TWA flight 847 was siezed in Beruit. Hostages were taken and eventually released. The cruiseship Achille Lauro was highjacked by PLO members. Leon Klinghoffer, an elderly American, was killed.

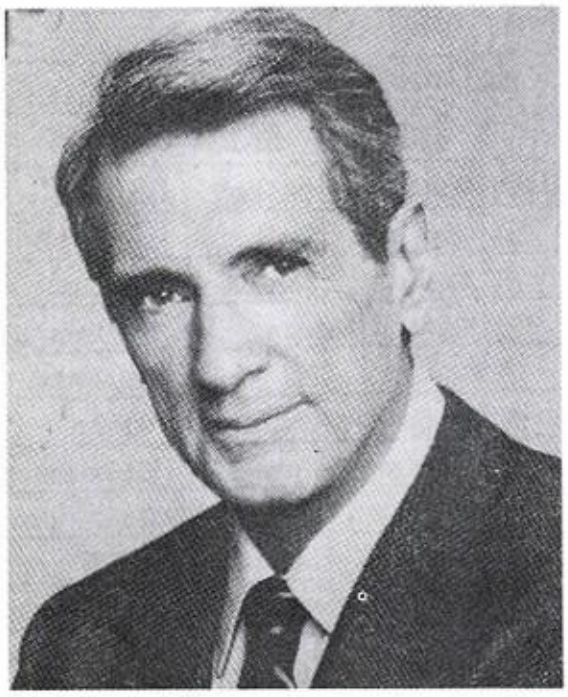
The terror hit closer to home this year, when Rome and Vienna were subjected to attacks by the PLO. Fourteen people were killed during the bursts of fire aimed at Israel's El Al airline in both cities. A Madison man, Robert Gage Jr., was among the victims in Rome.

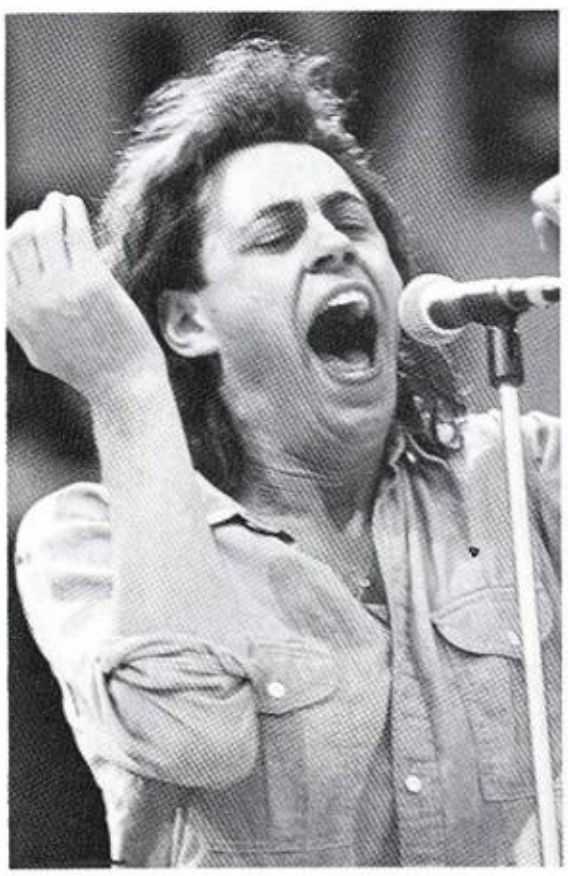
The Nevado del Ruiz volcano in Columbia erupted in November, causing mudslides that destroyed the town of Armero. The mudslides swallowed 50,000 acres of farmland and claimed 25,000 victims.

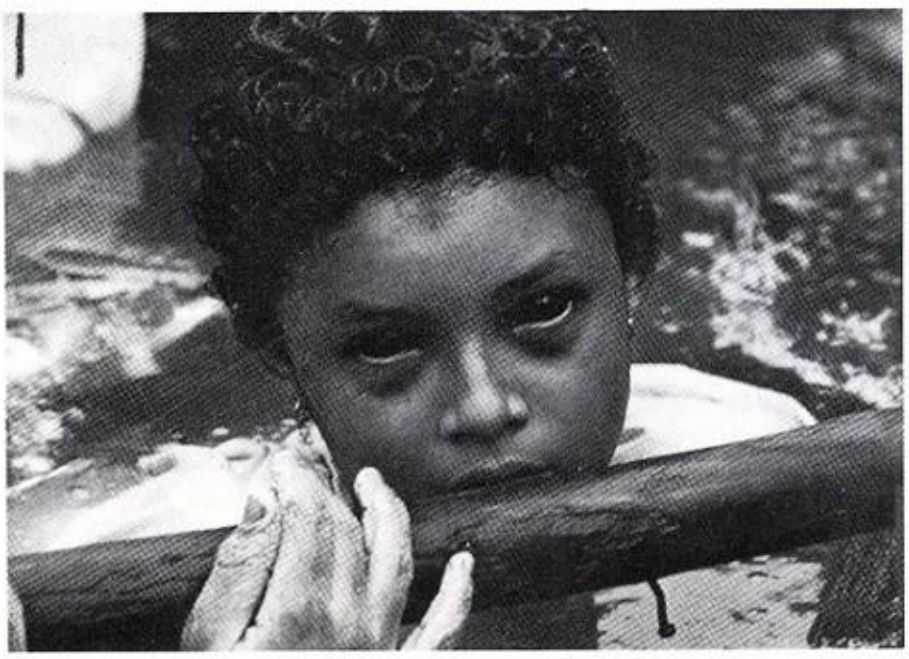
AIDS was a major problem in 1985. There were 6,406 new cases with a total of 8,122 deaths to date, including actor Rock Hudson. Cancer also received attention this year due to the cancerous polyp found in President Reagan's colon.

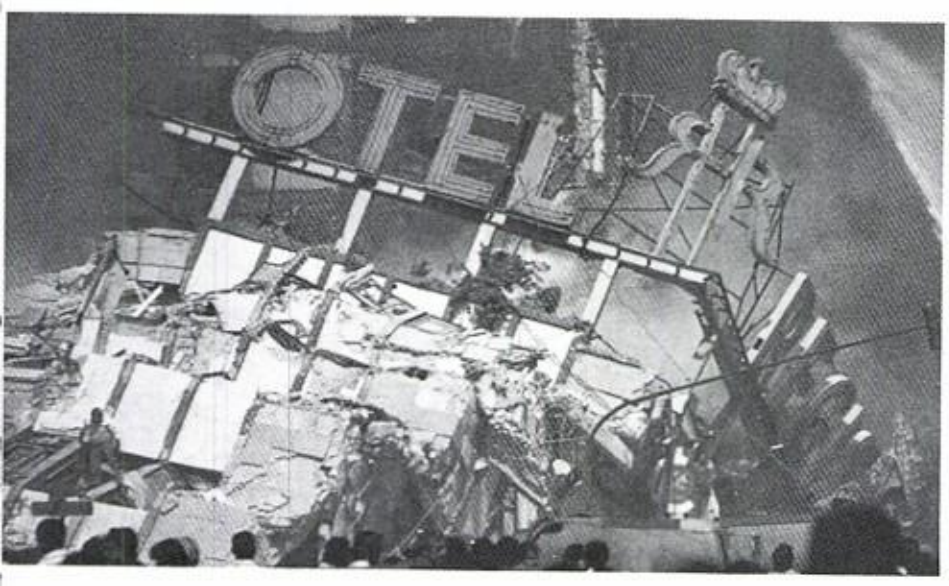
This year was the worst in history for air travel. Between public and private airlines, 1,948 people lost their lives including Ricky Nelson and Samantha Smith.

Winnie Mandela and Bishop Desmond Tutu have been key leaders in the fight against apartheid in South Africa. There were over 1000 deaths due to racial tensions.









On a happier note, 1985 saw hunger relief aid from rockers around the world. Bob Geldof was nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize for his role in setting up the Live Aid concerts in Philadelphia and in England. The concerts raised over $100 million for hunger relief in Africa. Farm Aid was also organized in an effort to help America's farmers.

1985 was the year of "new" Coke — to the displeasure of most Americans. After major complaints, the Coca-Cola Company reinstated the "Old" Coke as "Classic" Coke. Now America has a choice of something new or something classic.

The Kansas City Royals won the World Series this year, and Pete Rose broke Ty Cobb's record of 4,192 career hits. After a vicious tryout session, Lynette Woodard became the first woman to join the Harlem Globetrotters. Also, the Chicago Bears had a 15-1 season as mania over William "The Refridgerator" Perry caught on.

BITS AND PIECES OF 1985

* Madonna married Sean Penn.
* Yul Brenner died at age 65 after 4,625 performances of The King and I.
* Orson Welles, best remembered for his creation of the War of the Worlds and his performance in Citizen Kane, died at age 70.
* Halley's comet reappeared in 1985, causing frenzy among scientists and students alike in spite of the fact that it wasn't as spectatcular as it was in 1910.
* The Cosby Show topped the Nielsens this year and helped NBC move up in the ratings.
* Steven Spielberg's movie Back to the Future was the big hit of the year, grossing $190 million.
* Time's man of the year: Deng Xioping
* Karen Ann Quinlan died after having been in a coma for 10 years.

WITHIN THESE

Within these walls a lot goes on. The teachers work hard to prepare for their classes, and on occasion, the students work hard to prepare for their teachers. Academics have carried and always will carry a lot of weight at West — after all, after a week of intense scrutiny, we did win the National Award for Excellence in Education so we must be doing something right!

If you think about it, we're pretty lucky to be at a school like West. How many other schools have an English Department that offers courses such as writing workshops, Theater, Mass Media, Shakespeare, Film study and Contemporary Literature, to name a very few? Most schools just have English 9, 10, 11 and 12.

Seniors have the most choices as far as course selection goes. They can elect to take advanced business courses or new and different social studies courses such as social psycology, social issues, economics, current world affairs and philosophy. As a result, most students have no problem finding courses of interest to complete their graduation credits.

Oh — credits. The class of 1986 was the first to be required to take 22 credits to graduate. Beginning with the class of 1989, students will need more credits of physical education, English, and computing. After filling these requirements, however, they still have many elective options such as auto mechanics, construction, pottery or Allied Arts.

There's no denying the classes at West are very diverse, appealing to a wide range of students, many of whom hold different views of the school and its quality of education. It is these varying views that produce West's diverse student body, one which most would agree deserves its award of excellence.

IMC

Eighteen to twenty students earn one fourth credit a semester working in the IMC one class period every day. The librarians would be "at a loss without them." These special students are treated as real job applicants with a one half hour-long job interview conducted by advisors Mrs. Gutzmer and Mrs. Lundin. They are usually trained on the job, but are sometimes required to come in before school. Jobs include: clipping articles about the School of Excellence from local (and national) newspapers, stamping new books with the MADISON WEST HIGH seal, organizing the books when students jam them into the return slot, replacing old magazines with new ones, and, of course, filing things alphabetically. These smiling students at the desk who look at your ID and stamp your book are obviously not just your Pro Joe Average West High Students, these helpers definetely earn their one fourth credit.

RADIO CLUB

Radio Club meets under the supervision of Mr. Manke every Wednesday, after school in either room 333 or 361. In both of these rooms, electronic equipment is hidden everywhere. The members of Radio Club use short wave radios to contact other "hams" (short wave radio operators) all around the world. To be able to use the radios, you must know morse code and electronic theory, although this is not a prerequisite to join the club, as only two members, one of whom is longtime member and graduating senior John Oghalai, have a license to operate. Every Christmas, Radio Club sponsors a Radiogram Service to West High students. The students can give a message to the Radio Club. The club will then relay the message to whomever it's meant for, passing through many short wave radio stations. Finally, a Ham who lives in the city where the message is to be received calls the receiver and tells him the message.

At the end of the year, to celebrate fun times and high adventure, the Radio Club has a huge pizza party, stuffing themselves to the max.

AV

What is AV? Is it the reason the VCR was in your classroom so you didn't have to listen to your teacher talk that day? Or is it the carts whipping down the halls?

Yes, it is these things and a whole lot more. As one member put it, " AV is a bunch of guys who are proud of delivering film strips and broken tape recorders." Some of the AV boys' activities beyond the call of duty include locking the elevator between floors and opening the door in order to beautify the walls with their names and favorite sayings. Some also enjoy making their own films and documentaries in the halls of West. If you want the privilege of delivering high-tech equipment, long to meet interesting teachers, and have an unrestricted hall pass, then AV is for you. The daring supervisors, Mr. Ehlert and Mrs. Bliss, have trained these boys well.

Missing: Ellen Pellegrino, Paula Midthun, Stephanie Nystrom, Andrea Bauer, Amy Olson, Jane Crandall, Shelley Gustafson, etc.

Señor's Necios, also known as Señor's Kids, are a very devoted bunch. Every day that school is in session the club meets at 11:50 a.m. and 1:40 p.m. Although most members attend only one of the meetings, from time to time a devout necio can be seen at both. This is also a very exclusive club. A member is required to study fifth year Spanish, to speak Spanish whenever possible, and to memorize long lists of Spanish vocabulary. Señor Zintel, the club's advisor and mascot, tries his best to spread Spanish and Latin American Culture among his necios, but they would still rather eat their breakfast at McDonald's than at "Taco Juan's." The identifying mark of a necio is a wild, obnoxious, or extraordinary necktie which all members wear in solemn reverence to their leader. The club's activities include "presentaciones orales," discussions of Spanish and Latin American literature, and, from time to time, a fiesta. Birthdays are also special occasions for the necios. They are celebrated in a sacred ceremony consisting of singing, counting, and ear-pulling. This ambitious group is certain to bring about a better understanding of the Spanish speaking world.

MATH TEAM

OINKS

The Varsity Math Team, coached by the infamous Don McCloskey, has an impressive and well deserved reputation. They consistently win local and state meets with astonishingly high scores. Many members, including Steve Shen, Michelle Wang, and team captain John Oghalai, are in calculus at this point or will be taking it in their high school years. However, it is not all work and no play for these young prodigies, as parties are held after every meet — with spirit added from mascots Concrete Chicken and Copper Pig. One may wonder at the farm animal terminology. The root of this custom is easily explained: the "oink" is said to resemble the grunts made when students encounter a difficult problem. One can see how this .... interesting group has attained such heights.

Students are selected for NHS by teachers on the basis of grades, extracurricular interests, and leadership abilities. BADGER STATE

Row 1: Katrine Orlik, Kevin Salter, Margarita Strmecki, Row 2: Chris Olson, Patty Witte, Anne Scherz, Andrew Hanson

Members of Badger Boys' and Girls' State had quite a memorable experience! When they first arrived on campus they were bombarded with rules and regulations and a schedule which was to keep them busy every minute for the next seven days. After that first two hour "orientation" period, they were all exhausted and wondering what they had gotten themselves into. Not to worry, though — things got better.

The first full day was spent nominating, campaigning and electing all "city" officials. The program was organized such that one floor of the dorm (about fifty people) constituted a city, two floors were a county, and everyone made up the Badger State. The week was planned to teach students more about the different roles of government on city, county and state levels. They learned the duties of different positions such as mayor, alderman, sheriff, senator, governor and many more.

Elections progressed from city and county positions the first couple of days, to the final election of the State governor on the last day. Throughout the week they attended meetings and lectures about government. The real fun came, though, in learning how to get around some of the dull stuff and just have fun with new friends. It was definitely a week they will remember — not only because of all they learned, but because of the friends they made.

WISCONSIN STUDENT CAUCUS

Under the liberal guidance of Mr. Prugh, the members of Student Caucus meet in room 144 on Thursdays to, in essence, learn the way of the politicking world and to snack on the provided Oreos and carbonated drinks. These hardened cynics spend the majority of November through March debating issues that fall into the categories of National Defense, Education, Economics, Foreign Affairs, Social & Welfare, and Law Enforcement & Justice. During this period, they hope to prepare for the statewide meeting that occurs during April in Oconomowoc. During the meeting they will attempt to persuade the abundant, far right, smooth-talking students of conservative Wisconsin to accept ideas such as the distribution of birth control within the schools and cutting down on defense spending. Three members, Jeremy Pierotti, Becky Sandefur and BJ Allen, have previously attended the Caucus. In the future, the club hopes to further the spirit of excellence at West by upstaging even the dreaded team from Stevens Point.

STUDENTS FOR PEACE

Students For Peace, formerly called Students for Nuclear Disarmament, work hard to educate the students at West about peace and to promote an interest in the peace related issues of our time. One of the group's major activities is organizing the Peace Week teach-in. Held in early February, it featured numerous speakers and presentations. In addition to peace Week, the SFP held a bake sale which raised a whole thirteen dollars and had a half price sale on buttons promoting peace.

SADD

In its first year at West, Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) has a sparse but devoted membership. Though they are lacking in number, they are not without optimism, feeling their membership will grow as more students become aware of the severity of drunk driving. In mid-December three students, Kim Shearer, Dawn Frantz, and Jennifer Platt, attended a state wide SADD conference in Stevens Point. There, they participated in workshops and found out what other organizations were doing throughout the state. Ms. Reffner advises.

Guten Tag, Dieses Jahr hat der Deutsche Club viel Käse Fondue und Apfel Torte gegessen. Wir hatten eine Deutsche "Party" am Weinachten und ein Abendessen. Beim Abendessen haben wir Helgas Deutschen "Top 40" gehort. In marz haben wir vielleicht nach Milwaukee zum gegessen in einen Deutschen Restaurant, Auch in April sind die Deutschen Kinder aus Freiburg gekommen. Dann sind wir nach Devils Lake gegangen. FRENCH CLUB

Le cercle français est composé d'á peu prè 50 étudiants français. Ils aiment le français et ils aiment aussi faire les choses amusantes. Leurs présidents, Jenny Kushner et David Bilder parlent françai- au cercle tout le temps. Le cercle fait "beaucoup, beaucoup, beaucoup d' activités" dit le professeur de français Madame Koritzinsky, qui S'occupe de ce groupe. Madame Schwartz aussi aide avec ce groupe. Les éleves vont au cinéma pour regarder les films français, qui n'ont pas de rating anglaise. Très interéssant. Aussi, ils font des excursions de vélos au parc, et après ils mangent un grand déjeuner chez un membre du cercle. Aussil ils ont beaucoup de suprise parties. Ils chantent les chansons de Noël aux maisons de Madison, et après ça, on fête chez un ami. Ils mangent á la Maison Française 3 fois chaque année, où ils mangent la nourriture française et bien sûr ils parlent français. Aussi ils font du patinage á Vilas, et boivent du chocolat chaud après. Et finalement, un projet spécial, ils construisent la Tour Eiffel! Il est un peu difficile parce que les morceaux sont très petits. Madame est très fiere des ses élèves et leurs efforts. Le cercle français a des rendez-vous une fois par mois á huit heures du matin. Ils aiment beaucoup de choses françaises et ils s'amusent beaucoup ensemble.

And for the Barbarians:

Letters sent to the Pope have had no response and therefore we are breaking off diplomatic relations with the Vatican. Attempts to revive the Latin Air Force have not been successful, but beware of killer pencils and the Killer Bitte. Other events have included visits from Dr. Ruth, He-Man, Officer Mike Masterson, and a she-lion. The Latin Guard, led by Rambo, foiled plots against the Mag and is preparing to revive the Punic Wars by invading Libya.

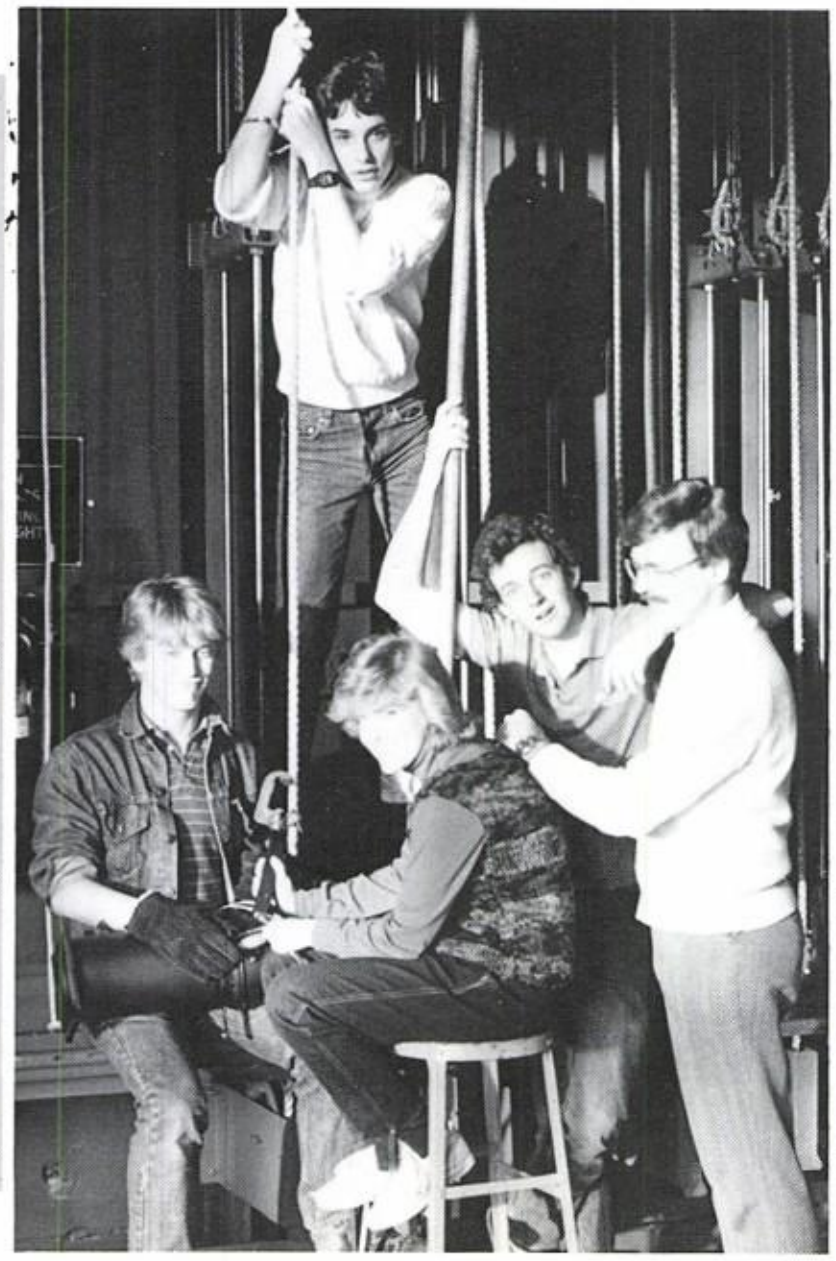
STAGE CREW



Clockwise from top: David Schwenk, Rick Combs, Mr. Rafoth (advisor), Tracy Kenney, Jon Luellen.

Two times a year, during the fall play and the spring musical, the small but active Stage Crew, under the supervision of Mr. Rafoth, works until all hours of the morning building sets, finding props, bracing platforms, hanging lights, and pushing '57 Chevies up icy Ash Street. This year's play: Spoon River Anthology, did not involve as much work as some past presentations due to the sparse set. The Crew for Spoon River consisted of Jennifer Schulz, Cherie Urban, Peter Walz, Andrew Caddock, and Miriam Temin. During past shows Stage Crew has had to come to school as early as 7:00 AM on Saturdays! Sometimes, they even had to leave homework until 1 or 2 o'clock in the morning during the week, only to be bossed around and kicked by the unappreciative actors. As much as they complain, though ("I want to go to bed") the Crew has a great time and produces a great show. Here's to another year of Summer Sausage and Colby, Bill the dustpan, and Mountain Dew.

WESTWORD

The Westword staff, under the direction of Editor Mike Zuberbier and Advisor Ms. Lazar, had a fruitful and fulfilling year. The publication — now in its second year — was able to go beyond the point where other West publications had stopped. Through its use of in-depth, informative reporting, the magazine was able to educate the student body on such important, school-related issues as crime, Army Recruiters, and Indochinese students.

The year did not pass solely in glory, however. A major problem the paper faced was financing: because it is not at all subsidized by the school, the staff had to go through the pain of getting advertisments and . . . when worse came to worse, the staff picked up the tab themselves. Another problem Westword faces is that a large number of staff members are graduating this year.

In any case, the staff should be commended, and thanked, for providing West with an interesting publication that presents both new ideas and different viewpoints.

PEP CLUB

Pep Club experienced a change in policy this year that had a dramatic effect on the future of athlete's stomachs and lockers. The Big Brother/Little Sister plan, in which freshman girls baked cookies and made encouraging signs for varsity athletes, was abolished. Apparently, many parents and faculty considered this tradition sexist. The club, led by Danieann Demitros, hopes in the future to rouse the student body with bake sales, flower sales, and enthusiastic signs.

SOCIAL COMMITTEE

The Social Committee is the driving force behind the preparation of the formal dances at West. The committee plans Homecoming, the Valentines Dance, TWIRP and Prom. They scheduled the bands, woke up bright and early a few Saturdays to decorate the cafe for the formals and also conducted court elections. When the Social Committee was not busy planning for a dance they were at Mr. Manke's house watching videos, eating pizza and SOCIALIZING!

This year's Graduation Committee is really enthusiastic over the class of 1986's commencement. As one member put it, "the committee is a bunch of wholesome, hardy, hardworking seniors doing our darndest to make this the best graduation ever." Headed by Mr. Colucci, the committee has been working since fall to put commencement together. They divided into groups to work on different aspects of graduation. The groups include: guest speakers, student speakers, cards, and announcements, caps and gowns, music, and martials. One group that doesn't actually fall under the ceremony itself is that of Senior Skit/student awards, which is part of the senior party. With the graduation committee working so hard, 1986 will be a year the Seniors will remember.

INTERNATIONAL CLUB

Composed of students from all over the world, the International Club has succeeded in helping the foreign students at West feel more comfortable in an American atmosphere. About half of the members are United States-born West High students, and the other half consists of foreign exchange students, refugees, and immigrants, many from Eastern or Southern Asia. The group's main function is to have parties . . . . lots of parties, to celebrate Halloween to picnic, to play volleyball, to go ice skating, etc. About twenty of one hundred seven members, led by junior Gwenneth Jones, meet weekly to plan these galas. The group also went to the Milwaukee Folk Fair, a trip not offered to West foreign language students, which of course set off a typical protest. However, this did not dampen the spirit of the International Club, which has done an excellent job of realizing its goal.

DEBATE

Contrary to common belief, debate is a team sport which requires a great deal of practice and training. Not without its rewards, the team's hard work has paid off. Collectively the Novice and Junior Varsity teams have qualified for the state tournament eight times. The Varsity team also had an outstanding season, making it possible for members David E. Miller, Laura Wagner, Rachel Thorn and Sarah Armstrong to compete on the state level. Another important verbal sport at West is Forensics. To clear up some common misconceptions, it involves various forms of recitation, not Quincy related activities!

HUMAN RELATIONS

The Human Relations Club is more than just any old club. It's goal is to get you to search deep inside your soul to answer the eternal question: Why you are what you are? This year they sponsored a canned food drive to benefit the poor, the starving, the needy, and the hungry with a pizza party going to the homeroom with the most cans. Ms. Palmer: Profound inspiration for her writers

TAPESTRY

Tapestry, under the supervision of Ms. Palmer, is an organization in which students judge the creative works, essays, and poetry written by other students. Anyone can submit works to Ms. Palmer or the staff, which will then be evaluated by three judges. Works with high composite scores are printed in the Tapestry publication to be sold during Fine Arts Week.

West is lucky to have someone like Ms. Palmer, who is willing to work hard to give students the opportunity to put together a fine collection of their own literature.

When you walk into room 325, you usually see a multitude of people tutoring and being tutored. Mrs. Karen Waggoner has set up an excellent system in which students having trouble in any subject from health to calculus can get help during any hour of the day. Through patience on the part of the tutor and hard work on the part of the tutee, the students' grades usually rise significantly. In addition to the rewarding tutorial experience, tutors and students can earn up to ½ credit a year.

CHESS CLUB

These interpid chess players were heralded by one observer as "The best bunch this side of the physics rooms." Every Tuesday and Thursday these people alledgedly play chess. They deny all rumors concerning this group: no one, repeat, NO ONE has been injured seriously yet at chess club. They have never received significant monetary aid from highly placed Soviet ambassadors. If you have any information to the contrary please relay it to John Arrington so he can cover it up. In addition to chess, members play Risk, strange variations of chess, speak Russian, and perform physics experiments on freshmen.

In conclusion: Ery lyudy budut perviye na srenye, Kogda nachinayer revolyursiya! Do Svidanya, comrade.

Constructing this year's yearbook took guts and determination. Many frustrating hours were spent planning out our five deadlines; the editors not only had to determine the content of each page, but also how to organize the staff. After these decisions were made, we moved into full swing in September, with the photography and writing staffs valiantly trying to produce the necessary elements of a "good yearbook". When the layout staff finally received the results of this labor, many fond memories were created from spending eons slaving in Ye Olde Yearbook Office. Sugar cravings led to many "shop runs" to Joe's, yielding loads of Oreos, Hershey's kisses, and hyper staff members. Later in the evening we frequently called Pizza Pit to alleviate our hunger pains, and were rewarded with suspicious janitors lurking in the doorway, wondering why the bunch of us didn't just pack up our by-now greasy layouts and go home. When our permit ran out (9 or 10 pm), we did leave, often transporting our accouterments to BJ's celebrated University Ave. residence. These deadline crashes could end anywhere from midnight until 6 am, and it was often in this atmosphere that our right vs. left wing battles raged until we were too tired to argue anymore. Although it seemed impossible, we basically met our deadlines and put out a quality publication. But NOT WITHOUT INTENSE SUFFERING, SO APPRECIATE IT.

Tony Bonanno and Phil Frank looking spiffy for the Homecoming Dance after their glorious victory over Beloit.

The West Varsity Football Team, ubbed the "rags to riches" team y Madison's most hip, Top 40 ra- io station, Z104, was true to its eputation. The season began with depressing record of three losses, ut the team bounced back to tri- mph over Beloit Memorial at our Homecoming game. This first vic- ory was the beginning of a six ame winning streak about which ne player remarked, "We weren't xpected to do well, yet we won our onference; we surprised every- ne." Being conference winners his year did indeed come as a sur- rise to most, although it was a very welcome one. Some of the eam's success must be attributed o Coach Hable who has been de- erminedly molding the Varsity nd JV teams for some years, and lso to assistant coaches Grabow, rdman, Roob, and Smith, all of whom helped the boys along their way.

The games versus Memorial and anesville Craig were among the best of the season. In a 7-0 victory over Memorial the team felt they had "dominated and controlled the whole game from beginning to nd." The game against Janesville Craig boasted West's best-played first half in which twenty-one points were scored.

West's offense was led by Phil Frank, Malcolm Johnson and Andre Johnson. The team's defense, led by Andrew Dregne, Eric Bunders, and Mike Schulte, was West's strong point having allowed only one touchdown during the last five conference games. Andrew Dregne and Phil Frank were the Varsity team captains this year. Outstanding team members included: Jay Meier - All-City Offensive Tackle, Andrew Dregne - All-City Linebacker, Tom Licari - All-City Defensive Guard, and Eric Bunders - All-City Defensive Tackle and the Big Eight Conference Player of the Year.

The team went on to sectionals where they lost to Watertown 35-14. Despite this loss in sectionals, the team was satisfied with the season, saying that there was "incredible team spirit and team contribution; it was a very united team and it had a lot of heart." The JV team enjoyed a winning season with a 4-3 record against the conference teams.

Do you remember those sixty-odd pups who comprised the Blue and Gold Frosh Football teams of 1984? Well, they have matured into ferocious wolf-like sophomores and some, even in spite of this year's 0-7 record, will continue down the laurel ladden path to J.V. and Varsity teams. Despite all the glory gained by participation in ths all-american sport, a question remains in the minds of many: What could possibly compel these young men to commit such brutal acts? Perhaps it could be the divine inspiration of coaches Ernie Gilbertson, Dick Falch, and Gwain Yee. Or, maybe the spirited leadership of Nolan Addison, Jeff Marshall and Jon Schultz is what keeps them rolling along. This question has yet to be answered with any varifiable evidence, but, maybe next year . . .?

No lack of spirit here!

FRESHMAN

We apologize that we were unable to identify the members of the Freshman Blue Football Team.

BLUE

Coaches Gary Graper and Karl Hansen were very proud of this years Gold Freshman Football Squad. In their opinion, the season was "very competitive in every game except against Sun Prairie." In this season, four of the five games were lost by just one touchdown. Even though their record was 1-5, their lads "can't wait to put on the pads again next season. Very enthusiastic about football in spite of record." Their final triumph was an astounding 16-0 win. Although not quite as successful — with a record of 0-5-1 — the Blue Freshman team was just as enthusiastic. The coaches, Bill Hargesheimer and Dave Mielke were still able to laugh, commenting that the most notable point this season was "when we had more than 11 guys for practice." They tried as hard as possible, but "great coaching couldn't improve the record."

The powerful driving force behind the Varsity Soccer team helped them to achieve an excellent overall record — 17-5-1 — as well as to send the team to the quarter finals in Neenah. Coaches Sharon and Jim Kuelbs did a fine job, bringing forth the talents of all the players, especially those of Paul Weidenkopf. All games were given the ultimate effort, but the victory against Middleton during the sectionals, which happened to have been held in pouring rain, was particularly enjoyed. The score was 5-2.

The Varsity and J.V. Girls' Tennis teams, led by captains Cheena Chandra and Kathy Langer and coaches Kathy Koritzinsky and Nancy Heiden, enjoyed a successful season this year finishing second in conference with a 6-1 dual meet record. Their best meets included the "excellent dual matches against Memorial and East" as well as their overwhelming success in the Red Raider Quad in Milwaukee. The season was highlighted with the opening celebration of the NEW TENNIS COURTS with Mr. Colucci cutting the ribbons. Congratulations to Cheena Chandra (12) who was the #1 singles conference champion and a member of the all area team and to Julia Balio (11), the #2 singles conference champion. Reena Chandra (9) and Kerry Lorimer (12) are also to be commended for receiving third place in the conference in doubles. Overall the season was wonderful; "Everyone worked very hard and was determined to win, but at the same time had fun."

BOYS' FRESHMAN SOCCER

The Freshmen Gold and Blue teams did well, winning many of their games. Their efforts have left everyone feeling very hopeful as to next year's J.V. and Varsity teams. We regret that we were unable to obtain the names of the members of these teams.

Have you ever been at West, afterschool, and seen a bunch of guys running up and down the stairs? That bunch of guys could have been the Boys Volleyball Team, or maybe not. Coached by Terry Roach, and led by captains Matt Ornes and Dave Pease, the team "mutinied" against Coach Roach because of a "disagreement on coaching techniques"-in other words, they didn't want to run up and down the stairs. The notorious group also water-ballooned the coaches and parents of the East team. As you see, they did have a lot of fun this year. However, they didn't just have fun in this way. They played great games at Fort Atkinson and LaFollette, and their season records were 8-4 overall and 9-3 in the West invitational. They played to their potential and were proud of their performance.

JV

We regret that we were unable to obtain the names of the members of the JV team.

The Junior Varsity Volleyball team's records this year were 5-1 and 6-6 in Conference. They were co-champs of the city with the Freshman Boy's Volleyball team, whose record was also 5-1.

The Girls Varsity Volleyball team enjoyed a great season under the expert leadership of Mrs. Peg Mueller. Their team captains were Tracy Fleming and Becky Keefe. This year's roster of outstanding team starters included Trisha Fleming (11), Becky Keefe (12), Jackie Johnson (11), Tracy Fleming (12), Patty Witte (12), Meg Test (12), all of whom were joined by Mel Budd (12) and Lisa Kily (11). One member of the team said about their record, "If we played like we knew we could, we would have done it! We had a good season and just didn't play like we usually did when it came to sectionals. But overall, we did great!"

In conference they had a record of 14-0, at the West Invitational they placed second, and at the Baraboo Tourney they put a quick end to any chance of victory for the other teams: coming out on top in 1st place. They also won regionals, although they did lose at sectionals.

Notable points of the season would have to include the bus rides, listening to the same tapes and songs over and over, Tracy and Amy never showing their teeth, and Amy's beautiful "smooth" legs. Most important of all, however, were the wonderful 10 laps, 30 sit-ups, and 25 push-ups. The JV team finished off their season with a record of 13-1.

We regret that we were unable to identify the members of the Freshman teams or obtain any information about their season.

BOYS' X-COUNTRY

Where can you hear such things as "Gotta get my McD.L.T" and "baaad Attitude"? In the midst of the West Boys' Cross-Country team, of course! Led by coach Mark Eames and team captains Neal Williams and Mike Brenneis, the team had a "fairly successful" year. Their best meets included the Triple-Dual meets against East and Beloit. With the help of talented runners Bart Schmidt and Warren Baske they were able to "show their stuff" by taking the top five places in both the J. V. and Varsity races against East and Beloit as well as setting J.V. and Varsity course records in the same race. One of the most memorable points of the 1985 season was hearing the obscene words of coach Eames during a race — especially after having warned the team about disqualification for swearing. We are also reminded that "the Flash is still available."

GIRLS' GOLF

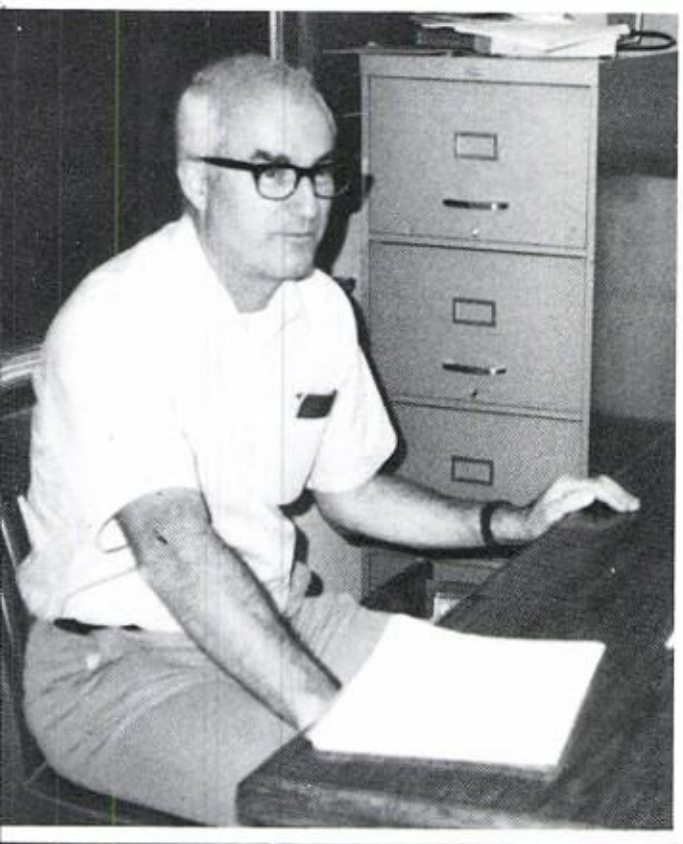
GIRLS' X-COUNTRY



A pensive Coach Loker reflects on the season.

Girls' Golf is one of the most rugged sports in the world today. It involves walking, hitting, and putting, not to mention tedious dinners at the Hatch Cover. These brave young women (Amy Reardon, Michelle Havron, Angie Stein, Amy Mergen, Erika Nerowitz, Liz Guinea, and Caroline Norsman) are the heart and soul of girls' golf, giving 110% in their quest for success. To join this elite ensemble, one must meet certain requirements; one must be in a positive state, mentally competent, and totally up-to-date with the Hilton Head social scene. The team's efforts were usually rewarded with victory, their record looking positive for the most part. Congratulations, ladies!

The Girls' Cross Country Team was a busy group this year. Coach Don Loker provided a wholesome atmosphere for the girls to practice in; they ran both some old routes and some new ones Mr. Loker scouted out in his famous Lokermobile. One of the runs has held its position as a favorite: The Babcock Run. (It's probable that this run down to Babcock Hall is the team's secret weapon — a way to gain new recruits from the West High Student Body!!)

The team had a satisfactory season this year. Mr. Loker was proud of the entire group, saying that they had "run consistently all season." As for season records, Varsity won 4 out of the 7 dual meets this year and placed fourth in both the Conference and Conference -Dual meets, as well as placing third in City. The J.V. section won 1 out of 3 dual meets and reportedly got their best all-season times at the City meet.

Varsity runner Jenny Saari, came in first in both the Brookfield Invitational and the City meet, as well as capturing second in the Conference and Sectional meets. Jenny went on to State which was held in blizzard-like conditions on November 9, where she came in tenth.

GIRLS' SWIMMING

The Girls' Swimming and Diving Team started the season with uncertainty, but were unexpectedly successful, despite having only three juniors and three seniors. At the beginning of the season, the existence of the Diving team was in jeopardy because West's pool doesn't meet the new WIAA depth regulations. Not to be discouraged, the team held bi-daily practices at the Natatorium, but they only competed in three meets due to other schools' cancelled diving programs and a shortage of places in which to compete.

Despite their uncertain beginning, the swimmers did well in both regular and post season competition. They were 5-1 in dual meets, which placed them second in the city. In Regionals and Sectionals, West again finished second to season-long rival Memorial. Later, however, they managed to defeat them on the state level, led by co-captains Sue Zickau and Mary Richardson, and junior Jill Hutchinson, who took second in the 100 m freestyle and swam with Margaret Malatt, Kim Binning, and Heidi Olson in the first place 400 m relay.

The whole team worked hard all season to improve their best times, but that's not all they did; this team is probably the only one that had as many potlucks and parties as meets! Coach Hargraves said he really enjoyed the season also, because he finds it rewarding to coach a team so dedicated to hardwork and improvement. In any case, the swimmers won't forget this fulfilling year, not to mention Coach's famous spaghetti sauce!

Men's Swimming had a successful season, losing only one meet and taking second in conference. They worked hard for their record, hitting the water as early as 6:30 am and again after school until 6 pm. Highlights of the season were vegging, brick wars, poker parties, and "hanging around" in the showers (in other words, hanging people on the showers by their bathing suits!) This year's favorite sayings included "Sweet!" and "Keep those heels down, Casey!" Congratulations to this year's team with wishes for luck in the coming season.

Jason Fishbain is a junior, but not just any junior — he's a member of the boys' varsity basketball team. Jason said his team is great, not just in practice where they tell jokes and goof around, but also on the weekend when they're real party animals. Jason also thinks his coaches are really dedicated people who try to make better players and people out of the team.

When asked why he plays basketball, Jason explained that he really likes basketball, and there were always lots of girls at the games. Also, Jason has fond memories of Kevin's rap on the bus, and Ray's loud mouth which helped to make practices bearable.

In addition to playing on the basketball team, Jason says he's just a typical junior guy out for a good time, with his favorite pastimes including girls, eating and sleeping (necessarily in that order). Jason is a varsity soccer player, also playing soccer in the spring. He is quoted as saying "I wear size 9 (shoe) — nothing compared to Ross' size 14 — but the size of one's feet doesn't determine how good of a player you are." His favorite classes at West have been Ms. Palmer's Advanced writing class, and Orv's Geometry class. Future Aspirations include going to the UW, becoming a gas station attendent in Indianapolis or possibly studying to be exactly like Mr. Singstock.

In closing, Jason said he'd like to thank all the great fans (all 20 of them) than came to watch the games. He'd especially like to thank Mr. Sederquist for all his support and school spirit, saying that next year the team might buy him a new jacket to replace the florescent yellow one.

The Regent Hockey Team had quite a season this year. It was led by captains Rob Bradley, Chris Olson, and Rick Carter, along with Jeff Marshall, who was the city's top scorer. With such a powerful team, the Regents had a record of 17-5-1, earning them a place in the state tournament. They did, however, lose in the semifinals to Northland Pines, 5-2. Certainly it was a sad end to an otherwise terrific season.

Freshmen Max Xiong and Mike Thiel displayed great promise, both having placed very high in the city meet.

CHEERLEADING

VARSITY

The Varsity Cheerleading Squad should be proud of themselves this year. Thanks are in order for Julie Reed and Shelly Schara, who went to Cheerleader Camp and not only learned leadership skills and the true cheering technique, but were also able to retrieve several "groovy new cheers", some of which you might have seen at various games and Pep Auds this year.

These girls are advised by Jodel Watson. She deals with the "sensitive subjects" with impecable tact, and, as David Letterman says, "I think we all know how painful that can be".

The V.C. Unit has many fond memories, such as Neenah, whirlpools, New Horizons, and, everyone's favorite place, Mr. Colucci's office.

POM PON

The Pom Pon Squad is made up of a hard-working, athletic group of girls who performed a new routine at every home football and basketball game. They put in about eight or ten hours a week practicing and attended pom pon camps and clinics. The best routine of the season, according to squad members, was Far from Over, which they performed at Homecoming and used for competitions. They also participated in International Week and the Holiday Parade (in the snow). Some of the most memorable parts of the season were doing body drops into three feet of mud, staying up until 2 a.m. making seventeen pairs of yellow leggings and dying shirts blue, and bouncing up after falls. When asked to reflect upon the season, the squad said it was "cold, wet, and painful (due to all of the black and purple knees accumulated from practice) — but very fun!" The squad advisor was Jodel Watson and captains were Lisa Erlanger, Shannah Sisler, Kris Schrader, and Andrea Dunhoft.

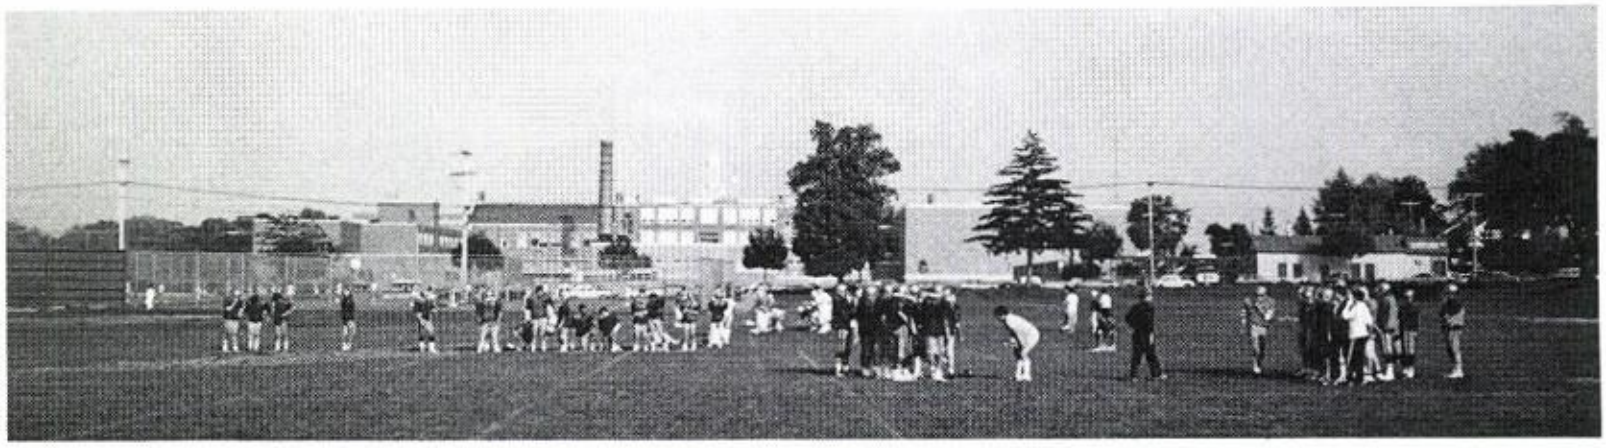
SPORTS LIFE

Many students are members of West athletic teams, but West's sports life does not stop at games, meets, or even practices. Friends made through participation in school sports are friends off as well as on the field. There are also many who, though not active in school sponsored sports, are involved in various other athletic activities, such as rowing, dancing, and snowflaking. These two pages are a mere sampling of West's Sports Life.

Charles Clover and John Cooper get psyched up to row.



Football players are friends on and off the field.

Dan Zanoya joins hockey players Rob Bradly, Rich Smith, Chris Stevens, Bill Palmer, and friend after a grueling workout.

South Milwaukee hasn't been the same since the snowflakers hit the slopes in the 60's. No, in case you're wondering, the snowflakers aren't a new rock group — they're experts in the newest trend in varsity sports: Snowflaking (sledding on those little saucers). Co-captains Jen Schulz, Dave Builder, Cherie Urban, Miriam Temin, Dave Penpek, Michelle Wichman and Joe Hellerstein, led by Coach Roger Brumm have been instrumental in popularizing the sport in Madison.

The Snowflaking team got an early start this season with two weeks of intensive training in balance, spin controll, and cold endurance. Evidently these efforts paid off: they snowed every opponent, resulting in an avalanche of victories. Good show team!

The fall play of 1985 was different from the plays of past years. Spoon River Anthology, based on the book by Edgar Lee Masters, is a collection of monologues presented by people who have died, and are now telling of their past lives. The play is a character study of these people, but it is also a comment on the ethos of rural America, and the sense of emptiness that many people feel about their lives.

"There's no way a high school could put on that show!" This was the opinion of the actor-in-residence, and many others, who felt the show was inappropriate for high school dramatics. West pulled it off. "We have good people," says Francis Staub, director, and because of this, the production was high quality.

The acting required a great deal of concentration, for each actor had to play up to eight roles, and each role was written in difficult prose. Also, the characters all needed to be portrayed in depth, si there was much symbolism within dialogue.

Likewise, the music required an ad element of concentration, since the m sicians were much like actors: portray characters from the turn of the centu and moving on stage with the actors

The technical aspects of the show w challenging, as well. Every charac meant a different light cue; sound c were coordinated throughout the sh the set had to incorporate actors and m sicians, yet maintain their separatene and convey the image of a hill.

Every aspect of the show was met w avid strivance for perfection, and the sult was a well-polished, effective del ery of Spoon River Anthology.

Offstage antics

Your Eyes
I looked at you the other day
Your eyes transfixed in a distant stare
Did the wind blow today? I asked with a smile
Your eyes revealed no answers
I gave you a key; the door remained locked
Your eyes vacant, leave me helpless
The print is too small; I tear the pages
Your eyes solidified in silent terror
I lit a match in your face
Your eyes don't see, don't even flicker
Where are you? You're my flesh and blood
Your eyes see nothing . . . in a distant stare

A Child's Midnight

The child is forgotten under a blanket of biting crystals.
Tender feet become ice as they inch deeper into the cave.
Neck stiff, wincing she turns her head toward the window.
A starless night is distorted through the glass
With feathery frost clinging on the outside
And cold tears sliding down on the inside.
As she turns, startled, toward the door,
The pillow creaks sharply in her ears.
Midnight glides in
Darkening the light from the moon.
Expectant ears pray for a slippered footstep.
Wide eyes search for a hint of morning.

Both Chairs Are He

My grandfather had a chair
an old, gold chair
with cat's claw marks
on everyone of its leather parts.
He could lean back
in the chair and extend the front to make a footrest.
In the evening
he would come and sink in to watch
some television before lifting himself from that warm lap and ambling
up to bed.

Now grandfather has
a new, white chair,
rubber pads covering the tight nylon weave.
This chair does not extend;
this chair is higher and harder
and tilts forward just a bit.
Grandfather lounges
all day, there,
in front of the set
watching sports.
No longer does he easily rise from his favorite spot.
But this is not really
my grandfather
and that is not his chair.

Sand

"when you are sad,"
i recite aloud
"think of all the people who love you."

i thought of you
whose green eyes opened at six while i tried to sleep at eleven whose showered black curls hung wet in tomorrow.

i pictured your steps
tracing paths
where the sand once covered our tandem footprints.

you've never seen wisconsin snow.
i wonder do you try to picture my steps
in these light, white hills of sand?

after i searched the mail today
i recited aloud:
"when you are sad,
think of all the people who love you,"
and i stared at the sears catalogue.

i could only think of you.

THE WRONG DOG

"The dog that was ill and would not come"

Look at that dog
There is something WRONG with it.
It is ill and it will not come.
It is a WRONG dog.

Dog, what is WRONG with you?
Why won't you come over here?
Are you a WRONG dog?

There is something WRONG with that dog, I think.
It won't come and it is ill.
It must be a WRONG dog.

You know, I am glad I am not a WRONG dog.
Because then, I would be ill and would not come when called.

Dedicated forever to our inspiration, Sarah A. Reznikoff

To a Friend

I see you there,
just standing there,
and I wish I were you.

You are everything I want to be and more and less.

What is it that you have that I don't have?
What do I have that you don't possess?

My mind tells me we are equals but my soul
asks why am I not more like you.

Why do my talents seem so meager
next to yours,
my faults so large?

I wish I knew.

But I do know that you are my friend.
If only I could stop comparing the two of us
so that I could enjoy our friendship.

Bad Luck Past

A cracked mirror hangs on chipping plaster
Seven years of bad luck past.
Up in the attic,
Where time stands still
Seven years of bad luck past.
Among bundles of old love letters
Where time stands still
Battered trunks and yellowed photographs
Among bundles of old love letters
Faded memories of yesteryear.
Battered trunks and yellowed photographs
A timeless world of days gone by
Faded memories of yesteryear.
Up in the attic,
A timeless world of days gone by
A cracked mirror hangs on chipping plaster.

Summer Camp

My very best friend
in the whole wide world
lives on the other side of the whole wide world
in the City of David.

I used to spend every summer with him
at camp, here in Wisconsin,
Up North,
but now I have grown,
and he has grown, and we cannot be campers any more.

His time has come to spend the summer training for mandatory conscription.
And during the season we used to spend together,
he will learn to shoot
or learn to hide
or learn to operate a tank or some other ungodly thing in order to protect the Holy Land,
his land.
My land.

And this summer, while he fulfills a duty
that regretfully compels him,
I will be back at camp,
Up North,
working now,
teaching a new generation of campers
what it means to be a Jew today.

tears stop in their tracks

"Call Back Yesterday . . ."

She was gone.
She slept under the stone.
So he forced his life upon himself and he locked the memories away in his mind,
and he threw away the key.
After many years,
she faded in the yellow photographs and she became no more than a lovingly engraved stone resting on a grassy hill.
And he wanted to remember,
but the key had long since disappeared.

Without a Scratch

A seventeen year old school boy was decapitated today
By a whirling Barry Manilow album,
Which was thrown from a passing vehicle.
The disc went right through his neck;
He never felt a thing.
His parents say the album was retrieved from nearby bushes,
Without a scratch on it.
When they took it inside and played it,
It sounded fine, no damage.
"Johnny would have wanted it that way."

If, all of a sudden, you felt like listening to a group of really good singers, what would you do? You'd go to a performance of the Concert Choir, of course. They had many performances this year, three of which were with the Mixed Choruses I and II and Treble Clef. Another was with the Wisconsin Chamber Orchestra and the choirs of Memorial, East, and Sun Prairie on November 22. They also sang at the Annual Capital Christmas Pageant. They continued spreading Christmas cheer at school by caroling in the halls as they have done in previous years.

Directed by Mr. Harr, the choir consists of sophomores, juniors, and seniors. They have a lot of fun and work in a very "laid back" atmosphere, but when things need to be done, they get done. So, if you ever want to hear a good group of singers, remember the Concert Choir. They have successfully brought music into the lives of, in the words of Andrew Certain, sophomore and tenor, "those who might not otherwise get a chance to hear a really good choir for free." However, we are reminded that all donations will be accepted.

Comprised solely of members of Concert Choir, Minnesingers (according to singer extraordinaire, Steve Turner) is "a small band of renaissance, wandering troubadors, singing madrigals to whoever will listen." The members were selected through auditions late in the fall. The group met twice a week at 7:30 a.m., rehearsing its repertoire for performances at such places as the Cuba Club, Howard Johnson's, Attic Angel Retirement Home, and the Atrium Mall. The Minnesingers are the crème de la crème of West's vocal community.

CHOIRS

TREBLE CLEF

What do you call an amiable bunch of energetic sophomores, juniors and seniors? Treble Clef, of course! This year's choir expanded their musical horizons by learning and performing a wide variety of pieces. The members of Treble Clef are, in their own words, "interested in improving our vocal abilities and becoming better musicians." Overall, however, the choir upholds the West tradition: above all things, enjoy yourself.

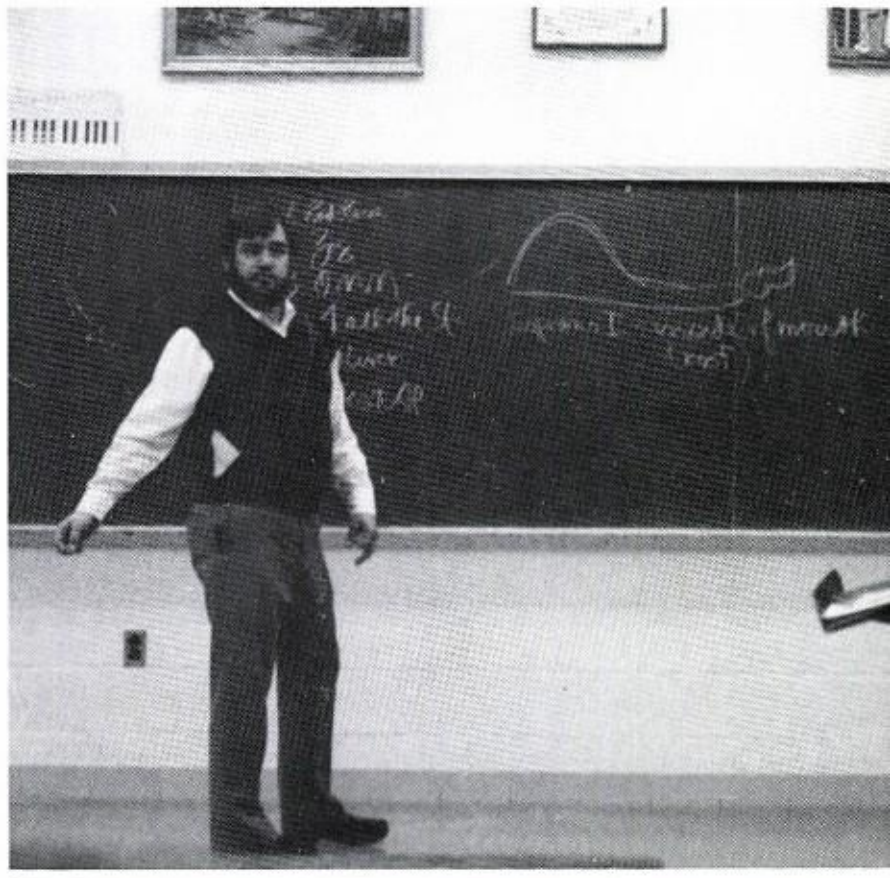
Robin Tishler, Heather Wittwer.

Trebel Clef brings Ellen McAleavy, Margaret Mallatt, and Erin Clune closer together.



Mr. Harr.

MIXED CHORUS II

The members of Mixed Chorus enjoyed themselves this year by meeting new people with the same interests and learning about different kinds of music. Being in choir, they were able to perform a variety of songs during their concerts on October 1, December 11, and April 9. The best things about the class were that it was a great break from academic classes and that it was a chance to hear the famous early morning jokes of Mr. Harr, director.

ORCHESTRAS

SYMPHONY

Under the guidance and dedication of conductor Hiram Pearcy, the 1985-86 West High School Symphony Orchestra had a terrific year. As a group, they grew in their understanding of music and its bearing on everyday life. Distinguished guests of the year included: Mr. Manoogian, Elsworth Snyder, and the Youth Chamber Orchestra of Stuttgart, Germany. Surprise visits were also made by the mute salesman and several talent scouts. Other beneficial factors contributing to their greater understanding of music were the musical era presentations and the annual trip to the opera. Besides deadly "full orchestra" rehearsals, the graduating seniors will leave with memories of doing the wave, playing the Hoe-Down, and tabulating hair sweeps.

PHILHARMONIC

The Philharmonic Orchestra, directed by Mr. Pearcy, is a group of energetic freshmen musicians eagerly awaiting their opportunity to move on to Symphony Orchestra. This year they were able to exhibit their playing abilities at the Fall Concert November 26, the Winter concert March 6, and the Courtyard concert May 30. Aimee Holschu, cellist, Jordana Scullion, violinst, and Melissa Wang, violinist, were selected to play the solo concertino parts in a performance of Handel's Concerto Grosso which was programmed to honor the three hundredth anniversary of Handel's birth year, 1685. Other members of the orchestra performed as soloists and ensemble players during Fine Arts week.

HONOR BAND

Honor Band leader John Rafoth was extremely proud of the performance of his multi-talented students. He found that they were not only gifted musically but also theatrically. This was proven during the winter season when they unleashed their creative ability in the form of skits. Some of the most intriguing were those of the French Horns' touching rendition of Swan Lake and the Saxophone's reinactment of Wrigly's Zoo.

On a more serious note, the year was very successful, with the help of President Andrew George and Vice-President Anne Scharer. Each day students grew musically but, above all, the Honor Band gave serious students an opportunity to play in a group where everyone cared about their music.

CONCERT BAND II

Led by Mr. Rafoth, Concert Band II is an inspired bunch of musicians: they're ecstatic when they make it through a class period without being tested on their scales. Their first concert of the year was a tremendous success, mainly because no one made a mistake — a relief for many. After the primary exhibition of their musical talent, the band hoped to continue to reach their standard of excellence. "Why do they push themselves so hard?" one may ask. The obvious answer is that they're afraid of Mr. Rafoth disowning them — an awful threat to be sure!

The students in Concert Band I enter under Mr. Rafoth's rule as rather soft, confused freshmen and walk out as proud and accomplished musicians. Scales, once a vague notion, become a well-known facet of their being. They are taught fundamentals of music and are strongly encouraged to explore the works of others and create their own ensembles outside of class. Carefully steered away from lesser forms of expression ("pop"), the students are exposed to a wide variety of music. To be sure, it would not be a surprise to see one of these young prodigies playing in Carnegie Hall in the near future.

1985-86 was a tremendous year for the West High Jazz Ensemble. They featured the first original arrangement by a member of West Jazz, and they shared their first annual pair of concerts with the U.W. Jazz Ensemble (directed by Les Thimming and Mike Darison), which featured the music of Duke Ellington and Count Basie. The band was led this year by a strong group of seniors including trumpet players Joe Hellerstein, Dave Miller, and Lee Dresang, saxophonists Tony Jarvis and Tricia Hillner, flute player/vocalist David Goodfriend, horn players Anne Scharer and Charles Williams, and drummer Andrew George. None of this would have been possible without the time and commitment of conducter Clyde Haberman, who motivated this talented group to make the beautiful music they were capable of.

PEP BAND

"Much more successful than last year! Everyone is playing better!" These were sentiments expressed by several members of Pep Band. This success can be attributed to the organization and dedication of director Richard Herried and to the enthusiasm of several new members, along with inspiration from smash drummer Tom Mattioli. They hope that future groups will do as well.

HOMECOMING

Homecoming was "a tremendous success" this year because of the cooperation and hard work put in by the students, the advisors, and the staff. Preparation for the Homecoming Pep Aud began the first week of school and seniors involved in the Senior Skit practiced approximately twenty five hours a week or, as one senior remarked, "a lifetime." The success of this year's festivities was largely due to the efforts of Ms. Lazar and other advisors who attempted to change several aspects of the Aud. They, in short, tried to make it an equal celebration of all fall sports, rather than emphasizing Football. They also stressed the importance of organization in the Senior Skit and Aud procedures.

The highlights of the Aud, according to the advisors and students, included the Senior Skit, the Whistling Midgets, the Rockettes, and, of course, the Court. Although there is still room for change, this year's Pep Aud was a great improvement from those of past years.

Homecoming festivities also included carnation sales, dressing in maize and blue, the homecoming game — which we won 21-14 against Beloit Memorial — and the dance Saturday night featuring The And.

This year, different from the norm, Midwinter was changed from the Saturday following finals to February 15 and the name was changed to, of course, the "Valentine's Day Dance." According to tradition a court was chosen and a pep aud was held on the most popular day of Winter Week, Summer Day. Festivities, which actually began with Fifties Day, Dress like a Frosh or Senior Day, Formal Day, Pajama Day and the carnation sales, concluded the next night with "Tara and the Paraphernalia" performing at the dance.

SUMMER

What happens when the school year ends and the doors of the neo-classical institution we fondly call West High close? Well, after our tears have dried (for it is indeed a heart-breaking experience to leave West, even if only for the summer) and a quarter of the population has left the loving arms of our Alma Mater forever, students head out to enjoy their forced freedom.

Some students cannot stand the thought of this complete leisure and head for the more organized activities, such as summer school. The most popular classes are Typing, SAT Prep, and Driver's Ed. They require little work but teach useful skills, such as how to type footnotes in ninety degree heat, what the antonym for ameliorating is, and which way to turn the wheel when skidding. An added benefit is the half credit reward to students who are able to finish the session.

For the bolder there are various camps: Concordia College, Rocky Ridge, Interlochen, the Yearbook Workshop at U.W. Steven's Point, and the ever-popular U.W. Summer Music Clinic. Here Students can learn more about language, dance, drama, writing, yearbook, or music.

Students who want the companionship of school but not the structure travel to Europe or the Boundary Waters on school-sponsored trips. Whether they learn about the French Impressionists, how to ask where the nearest bathroom is in Italian, or what poison ivy is, these travelers have fun.

Yes, boys and girls, summer is a time to have fun, but for many it is also a time to earn a little money, whether it is to pay for college tuition, a trip to some exotic spot, a means of transportation, or simply to finance the summer's recreational activities. Jobs range from mowing the neighbor's lawn and babysitting to researching in a university lab and working at a local hospital, with bussing tables and taking orders at a fast food joint lying somewhere in between. However unfortunate it may be, work is indigenous to summer.

Although almost no one's summer is completly free, most do somehow find time for recreation. Sports are always popular, but too numerous to mention individually. Also popular are Movies; the air conditioned vaults, most commonly known as theaters, offer relief from the heat and humidity, but seldom is a summer film an Oscar winner. For the more cultured there is Spring Green's American Players Theater where one can relax and enjoy the wit and grace of Shakespearean drama, if he can withstand the afternoon heat or evening mosquitos. Rock concerts are also a popular summer entertainment. Last summer we were treated to the music of Tears for Fears, Bryan Adams, and many others, but Bruce Springsteen did not choose to bless Madison with his presence. The most common summer activity must be body bronzing. Whether at Vilas Beach, at Shorewood pool, or in the privacy of one's own backyard, laying out on a beach towel with the boom box blaring, and soaking up the sun's rays must be considered the epitimy of summer's leisure. However, tanning is not the most popular summer activity. No, this honor must go to the sport of cow-tipping. What is cow-tipping, you ask? Well, any loyal Wisconsinite should know, but for those AFS students and new arrivals from Antartica we will explain that cow-tipping is the act of gently touching a sleeping cow and tipping him over. (Cows sleep standing up.) This is one of the few activities indigenous to Wisconsin nightlife.

As students grow more confident in their free lifestyle, they progress down the ladder of self-restriction and just when everyone is doing nothing, and the cows of Dane County are all in body-casts, school begins again and pulls us out of our misery.

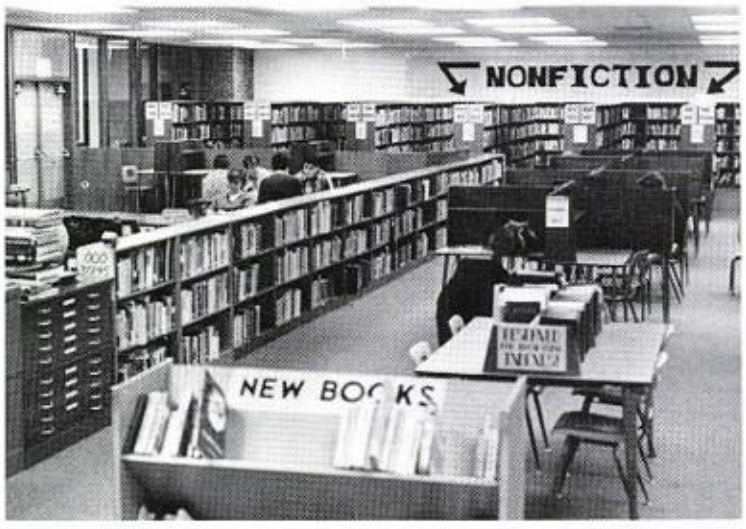
FREE PERIODS



Students "studying" in the IMC.

Karen Torphy, Jenny Hill, and Chris Henderson use their free period to catch some rays in the courtyard.

What is a free period? This year's Freshmen may never find out due to a new state law which requires students to be under school supervision the entire day. However, to all Juniors and Seniors, and many Sophomores, a free period is the most valuable part of the day. The more ambitious spend their time studying in the IMC or RMC, or tutoring less knowledgeable students in such subjects as Spanish, Biology, and Advanced Algebra. Others visit the guidance office to drop or add classes, sign up for the SAT, or work on college applications. More often, though, students without a class can be found in the cafe, talking and eating; on the Ash St. steps, talking and smoking; over at the shops, talking and drinking (soft drinks, of course); or at Ellen's, talking and munching (on fries or egg rolls). The most courageous cruise the halls, trying to avoid the dreaded hall monitor. The luckiest students, however, (with the possible exception of those who have 1st hour free and can sleep in) have 7th hour free and are able to escape to complete freedom an hour early. It is a terrible shame that future classes may never experience this feeling of freedom that comes with a classless hour, but maybe they will find study halls equally rewarding.

ON THE TOWN

Although it may be surprising to many, West students do have a life outside the walls of our neo-classical institution. Students utilize many Madison resources such as shopping malls, restaurants, and houses of government. They can often be seen on campus at the Memorial Union, State St., and the Library Mall. More scenic spots such as Picnic Point, Hoyt Park, and Vilas Beach are also popular. Madison is also a very cultured city and many students take advantage of this by visiting cultural centers such as the Civic Center, The Elvejem, and the Union Theater. Madison is so popular that many West students stay on for their further educations at the U.W.

During the past year, the student body has amused itself in a variety of ways in a number of places. The choice of activities was basically the same for everybody, although it appears a select group enjoyed a number of private hotel gatherings.

Parties continued to be the most hip way to enjoy oneself socially and, luckily enough, the parties themselves seemed to take on new, more individual personalities — reflecting their creators, perhaps.

At times when one wasn't present at parties, s/he could most likely be discovered hanging out in the Memorial Union — trying to mix with our social heroes: the college students.

Those not found in the Union may have been found on State Street, ambling happily away from McDonald's or Rocky's towards the Majestic or the Square Four for a Midnight movie.

An innovative group of West students began a new trend this year — haunting laundromats in search of . . .?

School sports such as football, hockey and basketball had honorable seasons this year, and many times drew large crowds. The school mixers afterwards attracted freshman and a few others as is usual, but were generally reserved as a last resort. The formal dances such as Homecoming and this year's Mid-Winter (the first annual Valentine's Day Dance) drew mainly a crowd of upperclassmen.

In addition, a group of home-bodies persisted — those who stayed at home to watch Miami Vice and their MTV.

Roger Brumm, head of the history department, has been teaching at West since 1964. Originally he taught American History but he switched to European when more European teachers were needed. He likes teaching sophomores since they are more mature than freshmen and are not as busy as juniors with their driver's licenses or seniors with their jobs. Mr. Brumm is notorious for his humorous exams. He says he includes joke questions on his tests to break up the monotony and to make his students feel more at ease. When asked if he had any exciting plans for the future he said no. However, he was kind of hoping to have a midlife crisis but thought he might have had one already without realizing it. What is his favorite aspect of West? Mr. Brumm said he likes the variety of kids from different backgrounds, countries, and experiences. He also said that it was nice to be a teacher at West because of its reputation of excellence.

Bernadette Fenton was born in St. Cloud, Wisconsin and was raised on a farm. When she was four years old she knew that she wanted to be a teacher. However, she did not reach her goal until she was fourty-four years old. Señora Fenton attended several universities: Wisconsin; Arizona; Guadalajara, Mexico; Spain, Brazil, and California at Sacramento; where she received her master's degree. She has been teaching at West since 1965 and likes everything about the school, staff, and students. After this year, Sra. Fenton plans to retire from teaching and take classes at MATC in French, crocheting, and short story writing. She also hopes to spend more time baking bread, writing letters, playing golf, gardening, and traveling. We wish you luck Señora!¡Buena suerte!

Valaskey, Van; Scie

Mary Moen, otherwise known as "Birdlegs," has been teaching at West since 1969. Her first goal in life was to be an actress, but she became a teacher because Broadway wouldn't take her. Currently she is teaching Mass Media and Advanced Media. Her favorite things at West are the students and the staff. She bases her method of teaching on the students, allowing them more independence. Her least favorite things at West are the trash in the halls and tobacco chewers. Her favorite T.V. shows are Cheers and The Cosby Show. In her spare time she likes to go out to dinner and dance with her husband.

Lalena Florek is a self-described short person into whose mind we are about to take a short journey.

Being a "freshperson" in our illustrious school, Lalena has decided that the happy, fun-loving people are her favorite characteristic of West. She remarked on the present political scene in the U.S., saying, "I think it sucks!!" This may, perhaps, be the reason why one of her heroes is Shera, He-Man's sister. Lalena has knowledge of what is good, and of what is evil. She has the urge to correct to wrongdoings of our present administration.

Ms. Florek is an obviously inspirational addition to the Madison West High School student body.

Jody Manke of homeroom 232, was shocked when asked to be interviewed. She calmly answered the easy questions; her favorite color is blue, favorite vegetable is corn, favorite gum is Extra Spearment and her least favorite plant is the cactus. Then came the questions that she either laughed at in disbelief or was coached through by her peers. She doesn't have a favorite T.V. show, the strangest color she can think of is pea-green, she has never been to Iowa and she prefers New Coke, whichever Coke that may be, to all other Cokes. Furthermore, when asked what her very first thought was on the first day of school, she responded "Well how am I supposed to know!" By this time, the interviewee was getting restless. She was told that there were only 15 questions, two to go. She prefers the Regent Review to Westward, the last magazine she read was Seventeen, she hasn't read anything by Horatio Alger, she wears a digital watch instead of using school clocks, she carries her books in a bag, instead of using a backpack, and she is a "latchkey" kid. Finally, when asked whom she liked to quote, she responded, "I thought you were only doing 15!"

Kris Peter's favorite number is 15, perhaps this is because she is only 14. It seems to her young and innocent mind that after reaching this magical age, she will embark upon a wonderful and beautiful journey through life. If forced to describe her Freshman year in one word, she would call it "embarassing"- this is an emotion I'm sure we can all identify with. Like, her like least favorite conjuction is, "like", and she feels the word mediocre best describes Tuesdays.

Her favorite insect is the mosquito "because they look so cool up close". On another controversial issue, Madonna, she says, "Personally, she's snotty, but I like the styles." On music, her favorites are Paul Young, Wham, 'Til Tuesday, and "the Boss".

Debi "Debi Bean" Catelino is a girl with a dismal prophecy. Within 20 short years she expects the Jetsons to be ruling the world.

One must wonder what experiences mold such a prophetess. She appears to be so unfortunate as to have had the opportunity to tour a bit in Europe. It seems she had enjoyed immensely " . . . going to Italy and having totally hot guys asking you to marry them . . ." This is, obviously the reason she named Italy as a place she would like to travel in (London was her other choice).

Debi looks up to the likes of Scooby-Doo. This may be why she is a member of the Pep Club. However, the blatant influence of Mel Gibson, her other hero, causes her to join the ranks that believe the present political scene in the U.S. "makes no sense".

Although Debi can tell the future, she is a very wholesome all-American girl. She enjoyed her brother's birth, for example. "I have a lot of energy and am totally insane at times."

Carrie Duell is a freshman at West High School. When asked to explain three past experiences she said, "Spending three months in London with my aunt, racing bikes for three years, and travelling all over, and coming to high school for the first time." The thing she likes most about West life is that there are so many new people to see and talk to, but her least favorite thing is the closed campus situation. Along with Pep Club, she belongs to the Freshman soccor team. Her heroes are Bob Geldof and David Bowie which goes along with her favorite musical groups of U2, David Bowie, and the Thompson Twins.

If she could go anyplace in the world for free, it would definitely be Sweden. Her favorite movie of 1985 is Rambo. On a more rhetorical note, in the next 20 years the largest technological advance will be "Solar cars, solar electricity, solar everything!" In describing herself in three sentences she says:

"I think I'm easy going. I always try to be nice to people. I like to have a good time and I am optomistic about the future."

Sam Siegel - A Peanut-Minded Quote

"If you ask me, I think that peanuts are the best source of protein in the whole world, because they're legumes and they put nitrates back in the soil. Secondly, peanuts are relatively cheap, when you consider they cost only 89¢ per pound, and take up little space growing in the fields. On the other hand, cows' meat, which is relatively expensive, takes 5 miles of land to raise about 20 cows which results in about the equivalent of protein which can grow in one acre of farm land used to grow peanuts. In addition, from a 500 lb. cow, you only receive a good 230 lbs. of good, American, FDA approved beef. I say, all of the cow-used land should be changed to peanut land."

Anne Nahn and Mike Harper exhibit West's 'Happiness in the Halls' policy.

Rachel Thorn, known as Thorn, Rach and Rach, is West's Star Sophomore debator. When asked to describe herself Rach replied, "Hey, What can I say? I am a debator, not to be confused with a Debate Geek, and I am proud to be a resident of the Mad City."

Rachel also happens to be the Sophomore class president. Her favorite characteristic about West is, coincidentally, that it is not Memorial. This is an emotion all of us can identify with; it is a true example of the unification of our class.

In response to a question about Reagan's administration, this young politician turned pale and froze. Rachel's only suggestion is "to pray!!!"

Aside from Debate and Student government, Rachel is active in forensics and some type of croquet club.

Way to go Rach! Keep up the stunning work!

Kevin Esch, who could have been a yearbook staff member, opted to be in the Scrabble 274 Club, the French Club, and possibly Westword. After much deliberation, Kevin remembered his first thought his freshman year was, "Will I find my homeroom?" When interrogated further he also recalled his first thought of this year, "Will I find my homeroom?"

Switching tracks, he explained his opinions on Health class. To him the class is asinine, but he quickly added that the teachers are okay, since one of them, Mr. Gilbertson, is his homeroom teacher. Then, when asked what he thought West would be like in 10 years, he decidedly said that most of the teachers will have passed away, and, of course, the lockers will still be green. He also believes the only good change in this school would be to make the pep auds last through lunch, instead of just part way through second period.

Kevin is also a habitual whistler, and his favorite tune to whistle is Deck the Halls, which he whistles all year round. In that light, his closing remark was, "I wish Christmas lasted longer than it does."

Becky Lynn Pfeifer leads a very creative and active life. She is intrigued by the "new and interesting" art forms in pottery, painting, theatre, and dance. Pottery is an especial favorite of Becky, as she takes the class at West and says "it's a great opportunity to release tension and express myself." She is not, however, a big fan of Biology II, explaining, "Algae and I never got along well".

She hopes that people will someday "learn to accept each other for the way we are." She also wishes in the future to be an exchange student to New Zealand or Spain, and perhaps when she is older she may "marry into money and become rich and famous". When asked if she has any deep, dark secrets that she could share, she slyly whispered, "At heart I'm a RHUBARB."

Along with being tremendously talented in mathematics, Sarah Reznikoff writes for the Regent Review and is involved in the international club.

After 3:25, however, we begin to see the alternative personality of Sarah.

She is often found at assorted downtown establishments (Memorial Union candy counter, Triangle Market) pouring out her troubles to helpless employees. After taking a bribe of free gum to leave she might wreck her friend's (Barry Josefa Allen) health by insisting she should be chaperoned on Sarah's frequent and exhausting shopping trips. All this because of the long lost '85 seniors.

However, one aspect of the life of Sarah remains unexplained - for what reason would Sarah be spotted in the back seat of a Badger taxicab going down Monroe St. about 60 mph in the wee hours of the morning?

Hmmmmmmmm.

This year, Jane Warner's favorite classes are U.S. History and Grammer with Katherine and Eleanor. Besides her rigorous academic schedule, Jane has participated for three years in varsity cricket. In her spare time she enjoys watching Gidget, forking houses and eating Brussel cookies at Ariel's. When she grows up, Jane wants to be a back-up singer in a reggae band. As a junior Jane looks forward to Florida '86 with Campus Life, wearing a beehive hairdo and having her life story in the yearbook.

Have you seen a tall, dark, athletic-looking junior walking around? It was probably Mike Werth. Mike enjoys weight lifting and crew. He is also the president of the Sally Jesse Raphael Fan Club and an honorary member of West's own Hairy Earlobes Club. Mike wants to be a pro-golfer like his idol, Jack Nicklaus. Some day he would also like to ski Mount Everest, but so far the climax of his life has been meeting Dan Smith (of P.M. Magazine) at a U.W. hockey game.

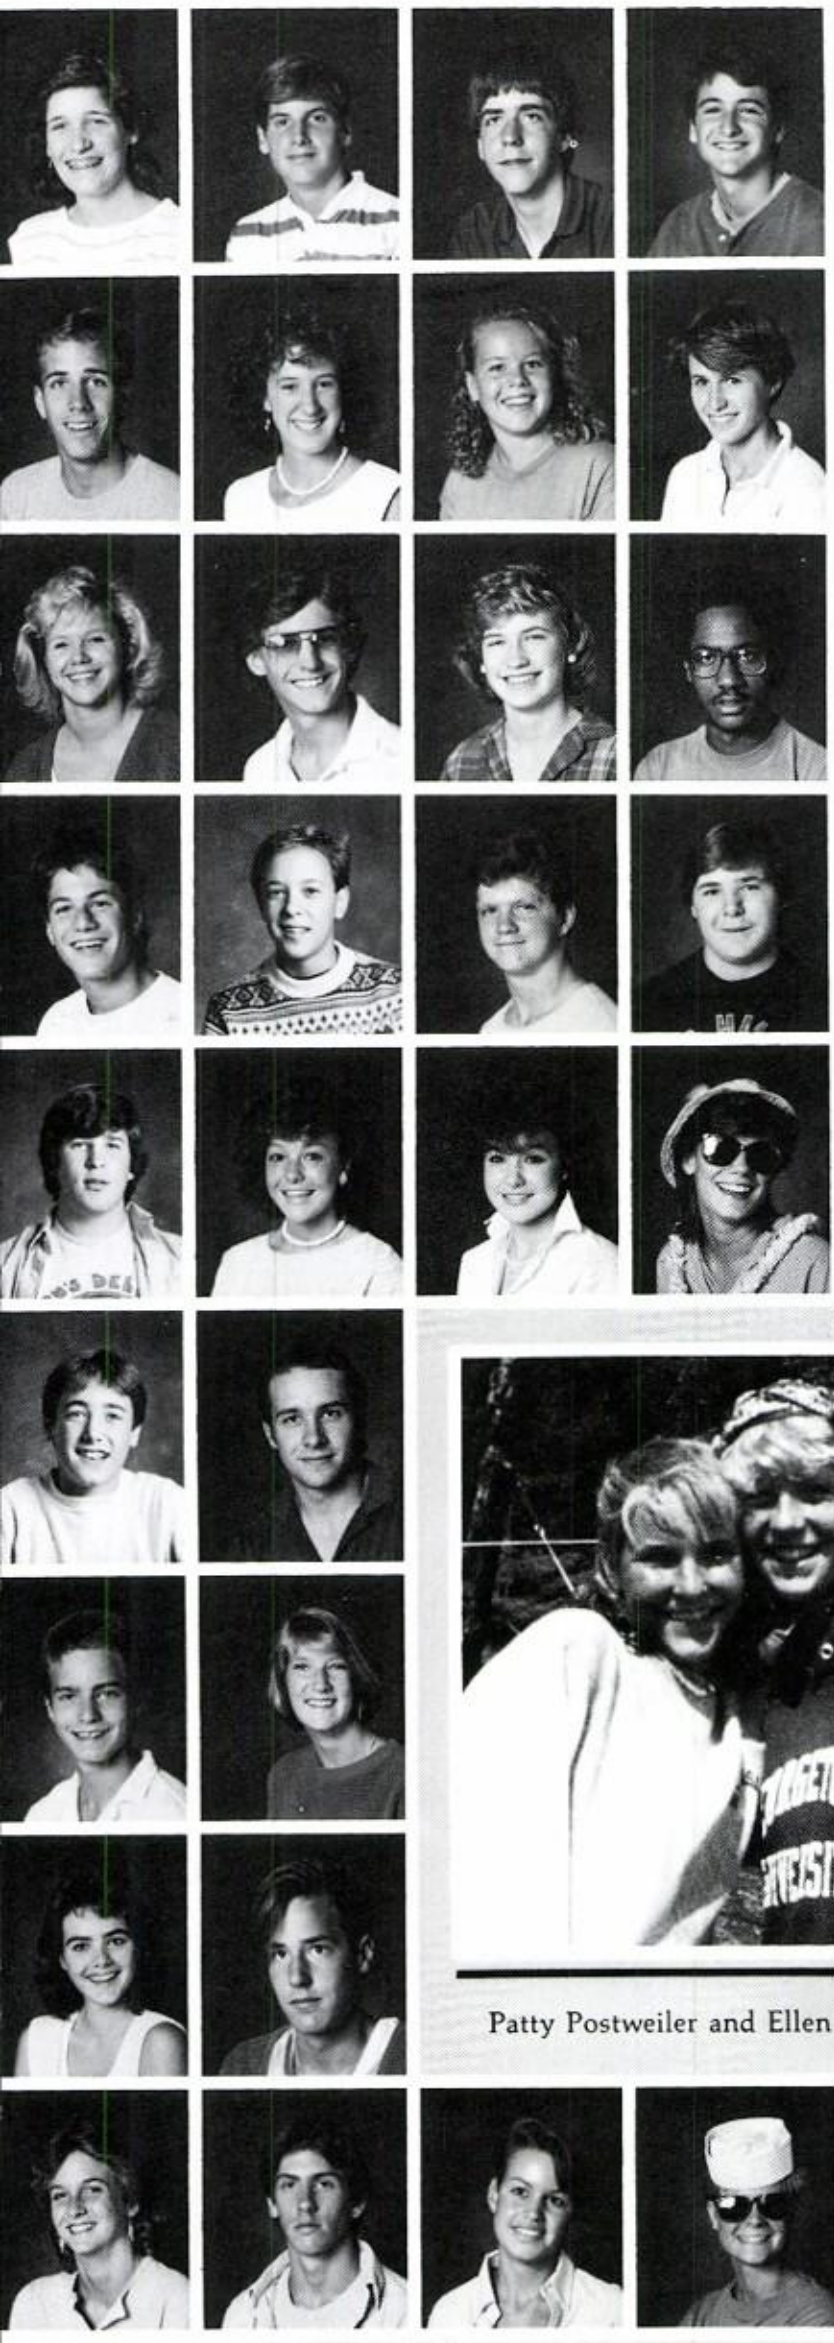
On the surface, Neal Williams appears to be a normal student with average goals. He participates in varsity track and cross country, enjoys floral photography, and plays the bassoon. Beneath this innocent exterior, however, a slightly bizarre mentality is at work. For example, in their spare time Neal and his friends entertain themselves by playing hide and seek in Shorewood — with cars. They are also currently crusading to start a Madison chapter of the Polar Bear swim club this winter. In addition, Neal is probably the only guy in the history of West to take his Homecoming date (plus linen, crystal, and candelabra) to McDonald's.

After high school, Neal wants to become the next Dr. Ruth. He feels he will be very successful in this area, due to his vast experience in dealing with the multitude of sex-crazed women who continually lust after his luscious bod.



Cindy Wallace is your typical socialite; she seldom studies, preferring to spend her time at football games, parties, and the like. Some of her favorite things to do on weekends include Verona guys and Zaritas with Andrea. When she was a freshman, Cindy aspired to be a cheerleader. She didn't make the squad, however, because she couldn't dye her hair blonde enough. Some of Cindy's daily activities include listening to Tears for Fears, fighting with her sisters, working at Le Bistro Cafe, and talking on the phone. Cindy also plays the flute and softball, and boasts that she can make it to Hardee's for lunch and back in seven minutes without getting a ticket. Such talent! In her spare time Cindy collects pictures of GQ-ish men, vulcanized rubberbands (she has 6½ pounds of them), and Madonna bracelets (she has 132). Cindy hates Forenza sweaters, Burger King, and Sunday drivers. Her motto is "Live now, think later." This philosophy is probably the motive behind her hedonistic lifestyle.

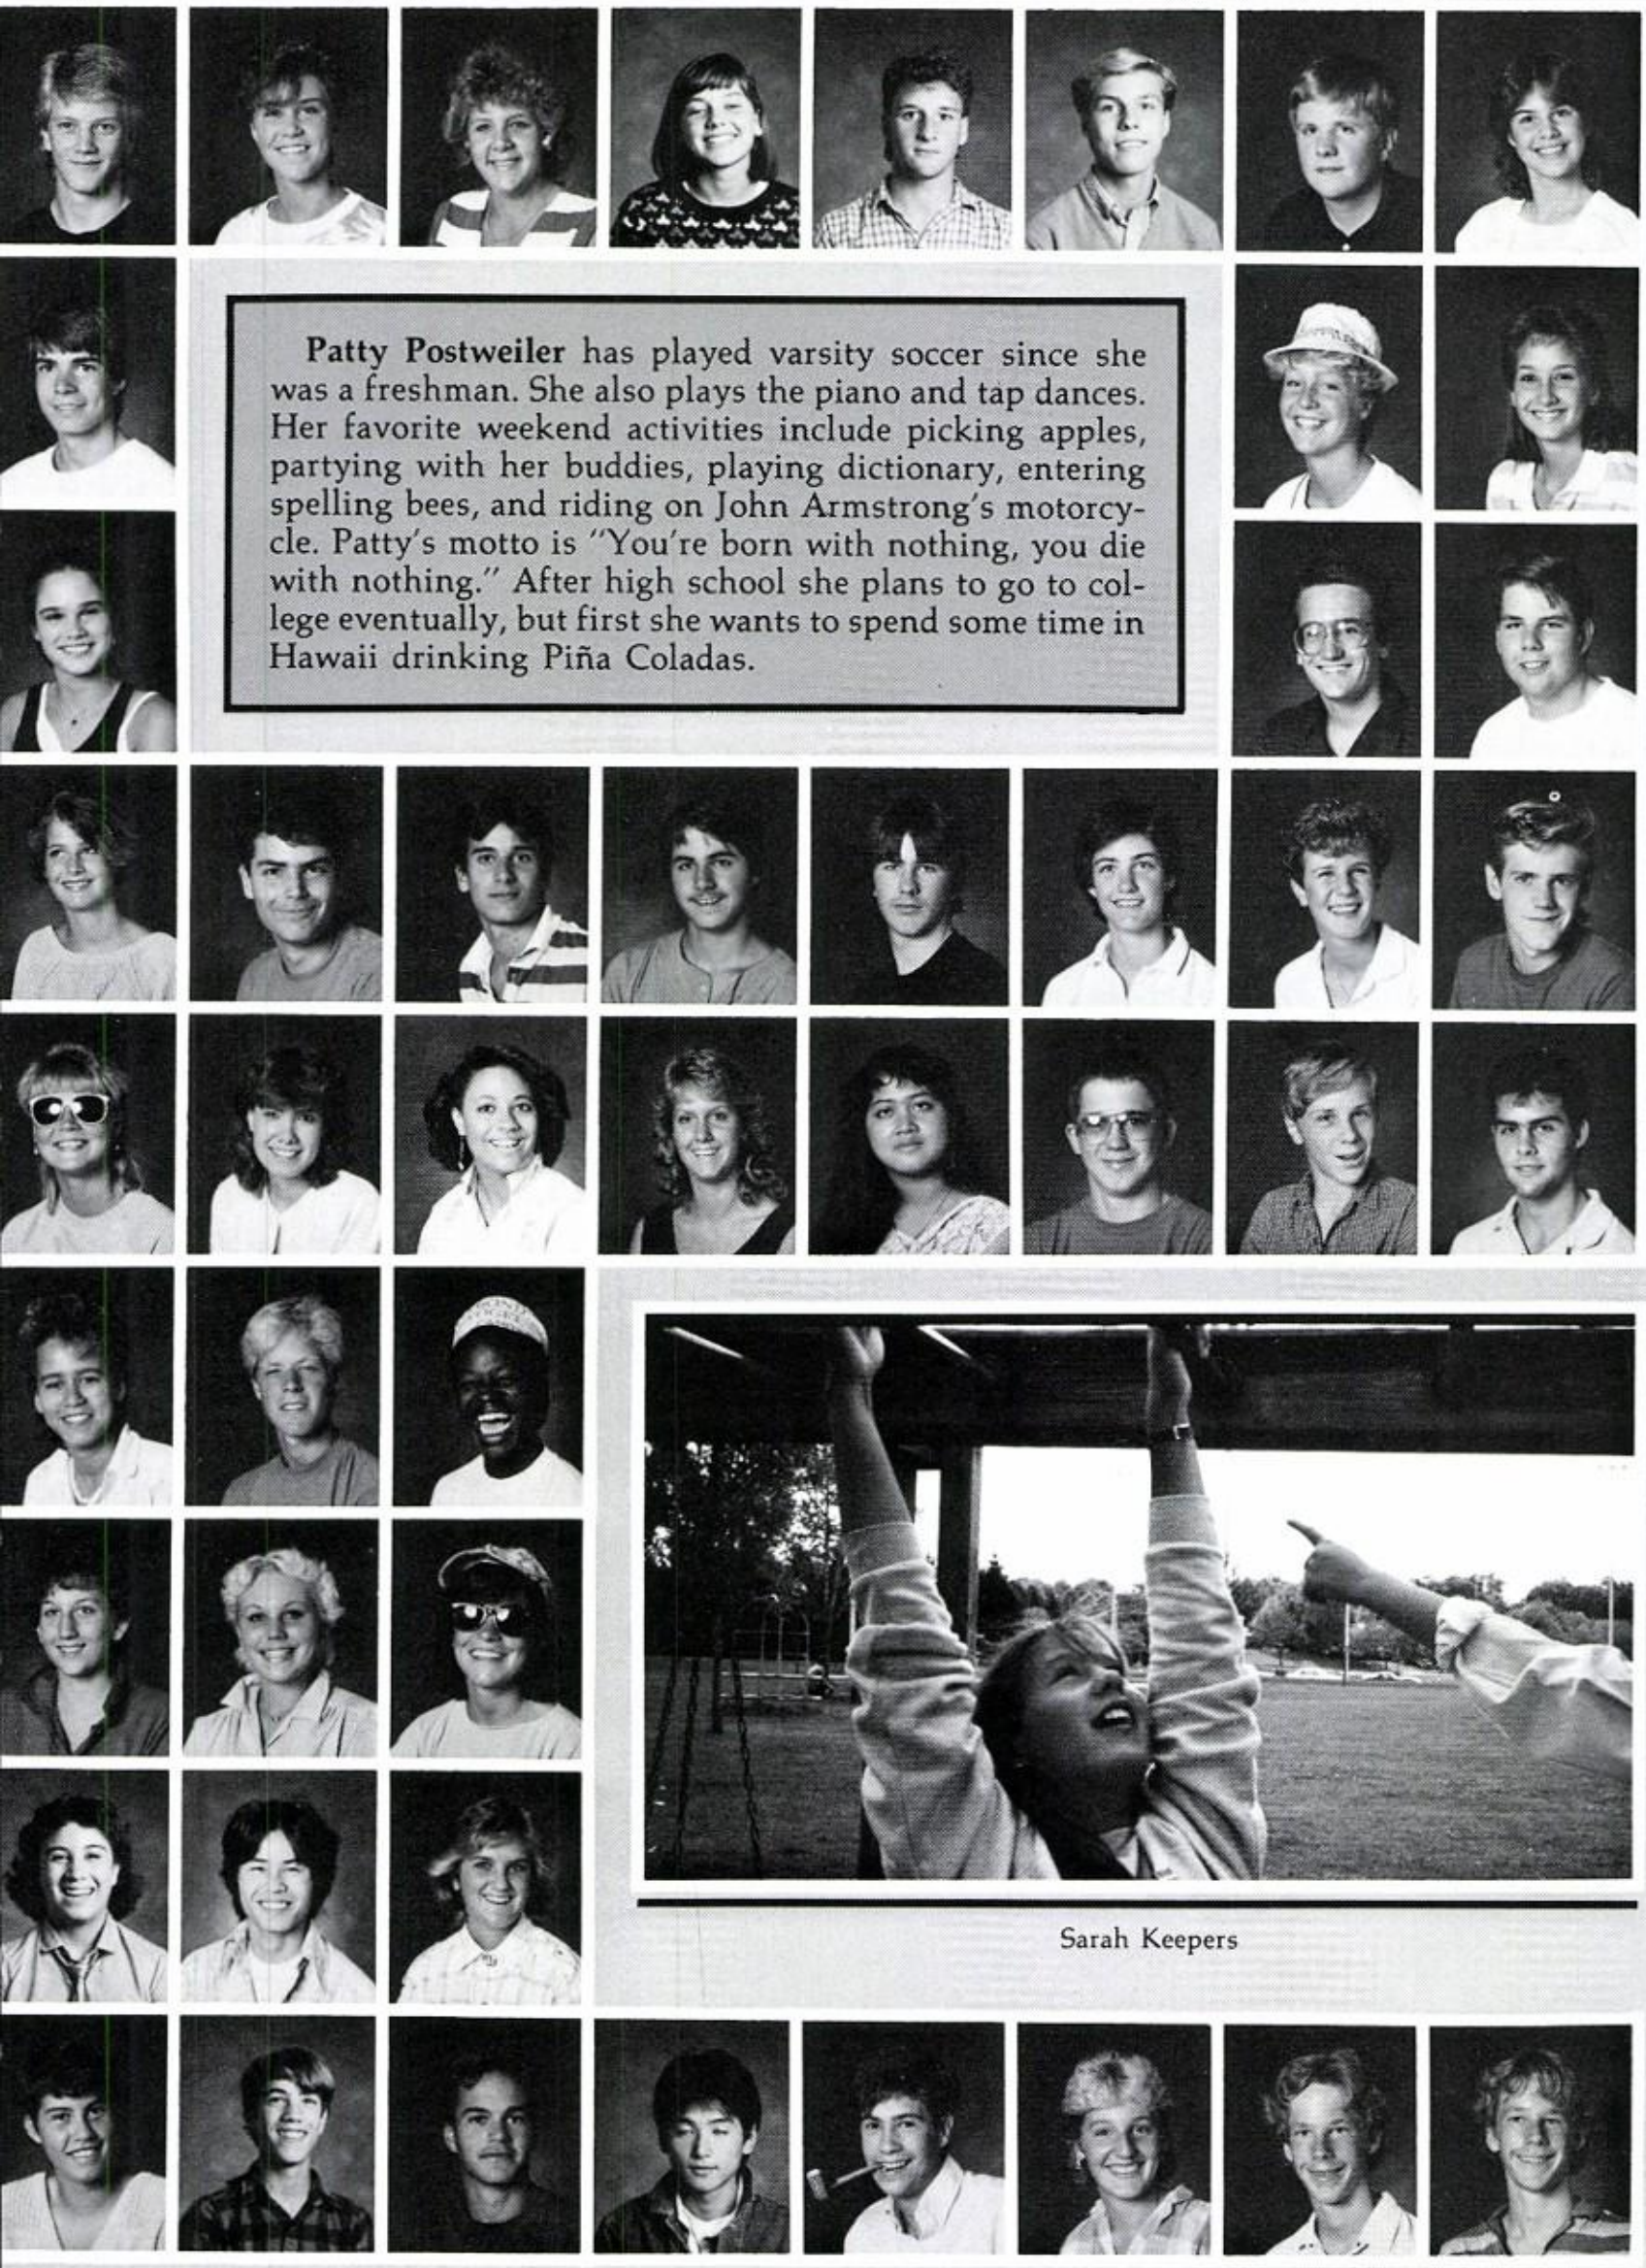
Annie Buell feels really "close" to West. Not only because she lives right across Regent Street, but because of the many memorable moments she's had here. Some of the most memorable have been Mrs. Winter's health class, slamming her foot in a locker, and bugging Mrs. Putnam in the RMC. Other highlights have been "reflecting upon" Mr. Sederquist's class, and swimming in gym, which she hopes future underclassmen will enjoy as much as she did. There are a few things to change, however, she feels the green lockers should be repainted, the lunch hour lengthened, and Science Fiction dropped from the english electives.



Patty Postweiler has played varsity soccer since she was a freshman. She also plays the piano and tap dances. Her favorite weekend activities include picking apples, partying with her buddies, playing dictionary, entering spelling bees, and riding on John Armstrong's motorcycle. Patty's motto is "You're born with nothing, you die with nothing." After high school she plans to go to college eventually, but first she wants to spend some time in Hawaii drinking Piña Coladas.

Erika Atchley's favorite tradition at West is the Rockettes. Another tradition that she misses is Mr. Harr's bell chimes in homeroom. The only thing Erika really doesn't like about West is "that lady" who won't let you leave the cafe before the bell. The high point of Erika's life was finishing gym forever.

Andy Olsen, star volleyball player, is your basic all-American boy-next-door. The best times he's had at West include going to volleyball parties, getting kicked out of the IMC, and golfing with his buddies during Fine Arts Week. The only things that Andy really doesn't like are the librarians that kick him out, and the cardboard toilet paper. In case you're wondering girls, he is a true blonde — from head to toe, and will prove it for a price!

When asked how he spends his time, Blair Rhode's first reply was "sports." He plays football, basketball and baseball for West. Outside of school, Blair and his buddy Robert "Mr. Paranoia Master" Klieforth like to play tennis and ski, listen to music from the sixties like Jan and Dean or the Ramones, and "gaught (?)" Phil "confirmed bachelor" Frank.

Other than his aversion to certain aspects of the cafe and Ash Street, Blair pretty much likes West. He also does well in his classes for obvious reasons: he is a self-proclaimed master in the art of brown-nosing, and lives by the motto: "overconfidence breeds success."

After high school Blair plans to attend the University of Wisconsin. A materialist at heart, he intends to go into medicine because he has "a burning desire to find a cure for poverty."

Talking to Michelle Wichman, one can instantly sense her inherently comic nature. For example, when asked why she thought we were interviewing her, Michelle said, "Because I speak the same language as you?"

Michelle had a lot to say about this year's fads. She hates skirts that are long with pleats in the back, and people who do not tuck their shirts in under their sweaters. She also cannot stand Soloflex ads (like, "a hard man is good to find") and bobbed hair that boofs more than 5 inches off the head. Other pet peeves include dirty ash trays, people who honk when they come to pick her up, and big boys who steal snow flakes(?). As for music, Wham! tops the list of Michelle's dislikes; it's got to be "Bruce or nothin'."

As far as extracurricular activities go, Michelle participated in two weeks of freshman track, senior skit, and is currently involved in graduation committee, the Wham! ban club, and varsity sumo jello wrestling, — feather weight division. In her spare time, Michelle enjoys writing raps for overweight, middle-aged women from Brooklyn.

Michelle's fantasy is to get a motorcycle and tour America; somewhere along the line she will meet an incredibly gorgeous guy and they'll ride off into the sunset together . . .

When asked why he thought we wanted to interview him, Larry Chapman replied, "to get a conservative perspective of life." Larry, who feels Democrats are too idealistic, greatly admires Republicans Barry Goldwater and William F. Buckley.

Among the excellent teachers he has had at West, Larry's favorites include Mr. Braunschweig and Mr. McCloskey, both of whom are friendly and understandable. One thing Larry has learned is that "there are many things as or more important than getting good grades, but these things shouldn't interfere with academic achievement. One can have both." Larry obviously lives by this philosophy. At West, he has tutored, done occasional work for the Regent Review, and has been a member of the golf team. In addition to school activities, Larry works at Ginza of Tokyo, and participates in the UW Badminton Club. He also enjoys playing pingpong with his father, going to movies, and watching David Letterman.

After high school, Larry plans to attend the UW and pursue a double major in Engineering and Business. He hopes one day to obtain an executive position in the Automobile industry.

When a person thinks of Tony Jarvis, music usually comes to mind. Tony plays tenor sax, clarinet, flute, guitar, and (funk) bass guitar. He is not sure what he will do with his talent in the future, but Tony knows he wants to make the best music he can, and if it makes him famous, that is all right with him.

Tony really likes West's diverse student population and incredible music program. The only part of West he doesn't like is the cafe. In fact, he has not Gustavo De Mezzo is an AFS student from Argentina. He came to Madison in August and goes back in July. The hardest thing for him to adjust to has been the language and "communication with other guys." He finds many differences between the two countries, including "the customs, the food, the school and the parties, too." Gustavo likes to spend his free time with his friends and his host family. He doesn't have any special hobbies right now, but says "perhaps in the future!" When asked how he finds the food in America, he replied, "Well, in Argentina the food is much more . . . prepared. We don't eat any of the quick stuff like McDonald's hamburgers!"

Gustavo plans to finish his senior year here at West and then return to Argentina to attend college and study diplomacy.

Another respected senior at WHS is Tom Mattioli. To know Tom is to know of his love for music. As an extremely talented percussionist, Tom enjoys all forms of music. He has been in a band for five years playing drums, though he also plays the keyboard and guitar. After graduation, Tom plans to attend the UW School of Music. Another special talent Tom has is his ability to get along with everyone. In his past few years at West, Tom says the two most important things he has learned are "to be independent of typecasting" and "not to make too big of a wave." His favorite activities include dancing, performing and romantic dining at Italian restaurants. Among his dislikes are constipated drivers, long red lights and close-minded people. Tom has earned everyone's recognition as being independent, good-humored and a person of many ambitions and interests.

As a freshman, Julian Montero used to look at the physics stairway in awe wondering what was up there. Well, Julian has come a long way since then. Now, four years later, he's seen everything and been everwhere from State Street on Halloween to Colorado on West ski trips.

In his spare time, Julian enjoys karate, tennis, skiing, and going out on Friday and Saturday nights. He is also a hard-core Dr. Who fan, a true procrastinator, and a leading enemy of pseudo-intellectuals.

After high school, Julian plans to become a heart surgeon. When reminded of the cost of insurance for heart surgeons, Julian replied, "The rates are higher for brain surgeons!"

Miriam "Reggae" Temin is another one of West's outstanding pupils. Besides actively participating in YFU, AIFS, TYG, USY, NHS and McDLT, Miriam is involved in stage crew, French Club and the varsity Snowflake team. Her favorite class this year has been philosophy with Mr. Jones because she enjoys learning through discussion. A second favorite for Miriam is lunch. Miriam is noted for her bizarre sack lunches. An average day's lunch includes a cinnamon and raisin bagel spread with Neufchatel cream cheese and mom's homemade raspberry jam, Cheerios, Euphrate's wafers, a big juicy apple and a carton of skim milk. Oh, and sometimes Miriam ha-ha-has corn. Though Miriam claims she has no accent, one can easily distinguish her voice from others in a crowd. In her free time Miriam enjoys growing dreadlocks, recruiting others to clean her bedroom and tabulating HP hair sweeps. After high school, Miriam hopes to attend Brown University and then go on to become a fruit fly specialist.

Absence

Black skirts
And slate suits
File systematically
Across the cemetary
Orderly
Except for the absence
Of the breath
Of a girl
Sixteen

Bitter cold wind
Prods puffy eyes
And dragging feet
Whips across a void deep inside
My laughter and tears
Stolen

Bubbling water of life
Frozen to eternal crystal
Absence of light
Traps potential prisms
In a deep hole

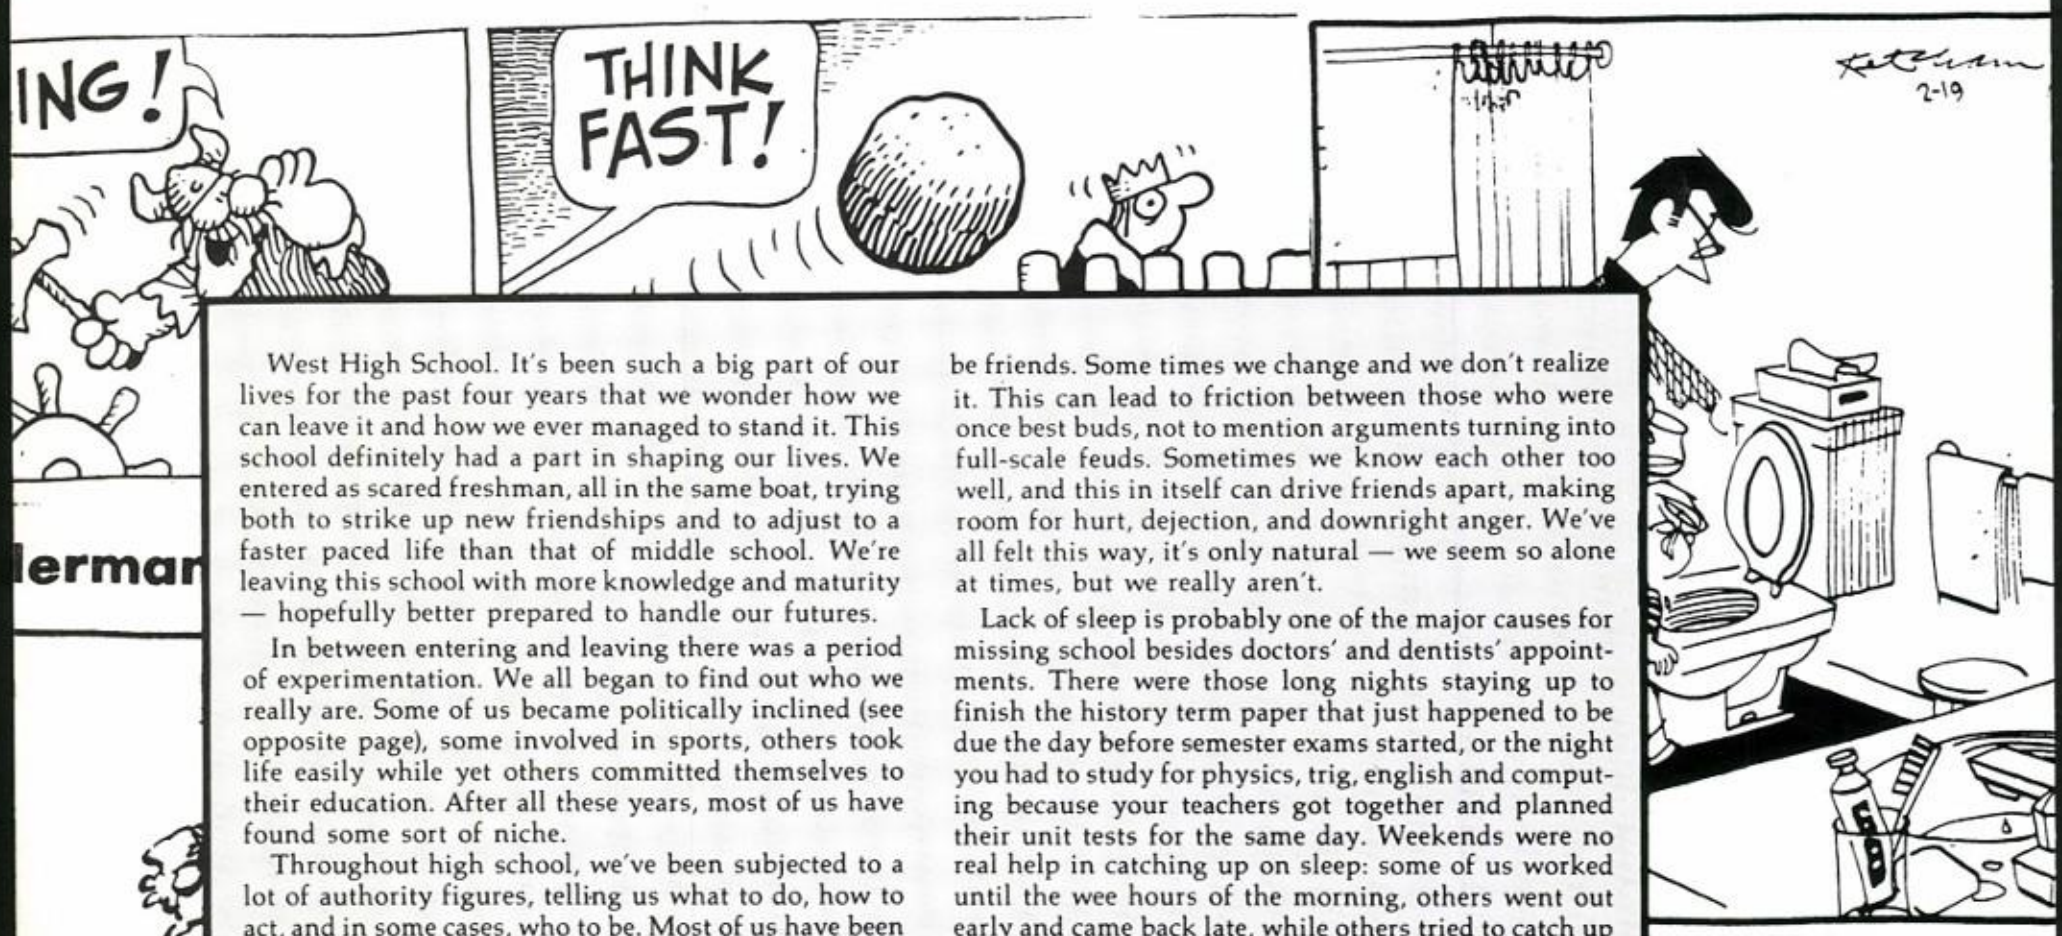
My own life
Now trivial debris
Settles on the bottom

— Linda Eble

This book is dedicated to our classmate, Andrea Brown, who died on January 16, 1985.

EDITORIALS

Throughout the year, the Westward Ho staff has striven to produce a quality book: one that, in addition to having accurately reported school events, also realistically reflected our time. As it turned out, however, the definition of the word "realistic", and its place in a high school yearbook became a heavily debated issue. Luckily enough, some pages that had been intended for ads from DECA became available, giving us a chance to express our views about being a teenager in the 1980's.



West High School. It's been such a big part of our lives for the past four years that we wonder how we can leave it and how we ever managed to stand it. This school definitely had a part in shaping our lives. We entered as scared freshman, all in the same boat, trying both to strike up new friendships and to adjust to a faster paced life than that of middle school. We're leaving this school with more knowledge and maturity — hopefully better prepared to handle our futures.

In between entering and leaving there was a period of experimentation. We all began to find out who we really are. Some of us became politically inclined (see opposite page), some involved in sports, others took life easily while yet others committed themselves to their education. After all these years, most of us have found some sort of niche.

Throughout high school, we've been subjected to a lot of authority figures, telling us what to do, how to act, and in some cases, who to be. Most of us have been a little upset over some of our administrators' decisions and ideas, but, if you think about it, we may be upset over all the rules we have to follow, but soon, we too will be adults, throwing our power around, much to the discontent of the younger generation. It's kind of cyclical, just like the freshman-senior cycle. Freshmen who get picked on grow up to be seniors who pick on freshmen.

But what about the good times? The first football game, the first mixer as a frosh (?!), staying out late at a dance, or partying the night away at a friend's house? Do you remember looking forward to English because someone you liked was in your class? Or tripping as you went up the stairs with an armload of books and being so embarassed? You tend to look back and smile, if not laugh. These are the reasons I'm going to miss West.

As high school students and nasty "teenagers", we've had to deal with a lot of stress and pain. The stress doesn't necessarily come from school — sometimes it's social problems. One of these problems can be friends. Some times we change and we don't realize it. This can lead to friction between those who were once best buds, not to mention arguments turning into full-scale feuds. Sometimes we know each other too well, and this in itself can drive friends apart, making room for hurt, dejection, and downright anger. We've all felt this way, it's only natural — we seem so alone at times, but we really aren't.

Lack of sleep is probably one of the major causes for missing school besides doctors' and dentists' appointments. There were those long nights staying up to finish the history term paper that just happened to be due the day before semester exams started, or the night you had to study for physics, trig, english and computing because your teachers got together and planned their unit tests for the same day. Weekends were no real help in catching up on sleep: some of us worked until the wee hours of the morning, others went out early and came back late, while others tried to catch up on all they fell behind on during the week. Such lives we've led.

For seniors, it was exciting planning out the future, or not planning out the future, as the case may be. It was also exciting hearing of your friend's acceptence into the college of his choice, or of another's plans to go to New York in hopes of breaking into the theatre.

But does high school have any bearing on our future lives? Has it really shaped us so much? Will the quiet ones turn out to be politicians? Will the brilliant ones stay that way? I don't know. That's what we'll find out at our class reunions.

Looking back on this article, I guess I wouldn't call it an editorial, but rather a senior's reflection on some of the things we've gone through at WHS. If you wanted to see the ultra-conservative viewpoint, I'm sorry. But, finally, how will we leave West? Will we go out with a bang or a whimper? I don't know — I guess it just depends on the individual.

WATTERSON

Before we sat down and tried to write this editorial, we had visions of its grandeur - it must have a sophisticated, unusual, and eye-catching style that would immediately spark controversy. We noticed, however, that the more sophisiticated we became, the more we clouded the point we were trying to get across: We hate life.

Yes, it's true. Yes, we know we are attending a nationally acclaimed high school and we should consider ourselves lucky for having so many opportunities. But we don't.

We personally do not enjoy having intense pressure thrown upon our shoulders when we don't even know if we want to go to college. But, as you must know, "Eighty per cent of West High students go on to a higher institution of learning." So we're probably going to go anyway, studying irrelevant and unnecessary subjects with no practical application. Even if we could get out of going to college we wouldn't have a chance in this world.

This is a message for all you optimists: open your eyes. Step out into the Middle East or the Phillipines. Khadafy is crazy: Marcos is a fascist. Take a look at Central America and Haiti. That's closer to home for all of you who need political unrest in your own hemisphere to get worried.

Reagan sure is uptight about our troublesome neighbors; he's given his wholehearted support to the contra-revolutionaries in Nicaragua, and practically spitting on the spirit of our own constitution. It seems that he's giving a lot of attention to foreign affairs these days. Perhaps he feels that domestic problems can take care of themselves. After all, it's much more interesting dealing with the neat new military developments than the nation's pregnant teenagers, homeless, or poverty-stricken. Too bad he can't be re-elected, hip dude that he is.

We beg of you, the esteemed student body of one of the best schools in the country, to forgive us for interrupting your daydream. We now return to the regularly scheduled program, already in progress.

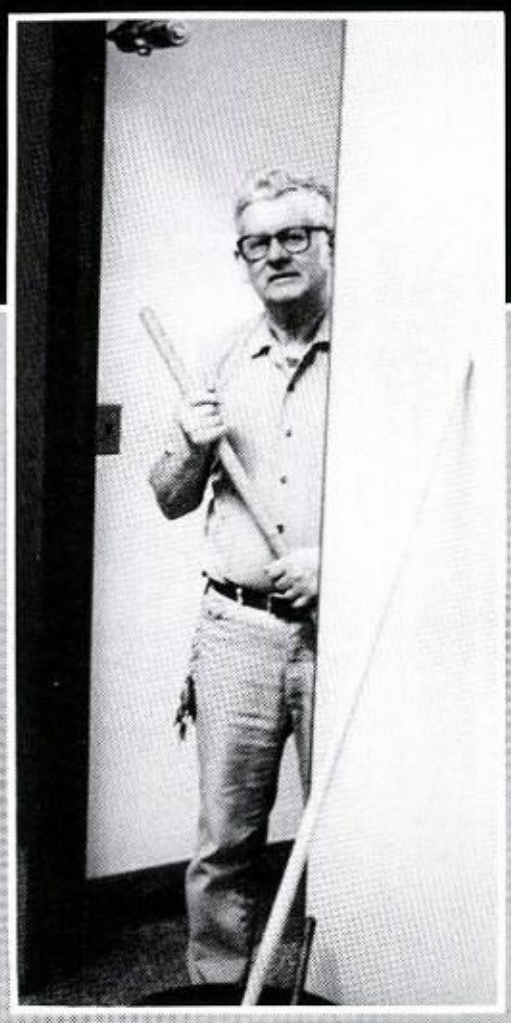
CLOSING



It started last summer — three naïve girls were sent off to Josten's Yearbook Workshop in Steven's Point. Never having heard of 2 and 3 point lines, tint blocks or 60 point headlines, we spent three days trying to understand the overwhelming lectures given by the company reps. With the three of us crammed into our dorm room, we ambitiously planned for the year ahead. A magnificent publication was inevitable: this was going to be the greatest yearbook West had ever seen. Unfortunately, we may have fallen somewhat short of our goal; we hope you enjoy reading it anyway. It certainly was an uphill battle creating it, but there was plenty of good times sandwiched between the hard work. We'd have been pretty sad dogs if it was all work and no play, for we receive no acadmic credit, monetary rewards or formal acknowledgement for our labors. However, we do wish to express our gratitude to a few people: Jeanne Marquis, our advisor, Kathy McDonough, our Josten's Rep., and the custodial staff at West High school, especially Jim Grahn, for their tolerance. We hope that whenever anyone looks through this yearbook, whether it is now or 20 years from now, they will vividly remember what it was actually like to be a student at West High School in 1986.

Domine dixit, "Fiat Yearbook."
Et erat Yearbook
Et Yearbook erat bona.
